PRESIDENT TALKS ON AMERICANISM AT WEST POINT

No One Who Does Not Put United States First Can Be Tolerated, He Says.

FIRST SPEECH ON SUBJECT

Militarism Defined by President Wilson in West Point Speech

PRESIDENT WILSON in his speech at West Point today defined militarism as follows:

"Militarism does not consist in the existence of an army, not even in the existence of a very great army. Militarism is a spirit. It is a point of view. It is a system. It is a purpose. The purpose of militarism is to use arms for aggression. The spirit of militarism is the opposite of the civilian spirit—the citizen's spirit."

"In a country where militarism prevails, the military man looks down upon the civilian, regards him as inferior, thinks of him as intended for his (the military man's) support and use; and just so long as America is America that spirit and point of view is impossible with us. There is as yet in this country, so far as I can discover, no taint of the spirit of militarism."

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 13.—"My conception of America is a conception of infinite dignity, along with quiet, unquestionable power," said President Wilson here today in addressing the graduating class at the military academy.

"I do not believe that any of us loves a blustering nationality," said the President: "a nationality with a chip on its shoulder, a nationality with its elbows out and its swagger on. We love that quiet, self-respecting, uncomplaining spirit which does not strive until it is necessary to strike and then strikes to conquer. Never since I was a youngster have I been afraid of the noisy man. I have always been afraid of the still man. I have always been afraid of the spirit of militarism."

The President declared it was the present imperative duty of the United States to be prepared, adding: "Man-kind is going to know that when America speaks she means what she says."

Hughes' Statement Followed.

The President's address ran through almost the entire list of subjects discussed by former Justice Hughes, in his telegram accepting the Republican nomination and he declared that the United States is ready to join with other nations to see that the kind of justice it believes in is given.

The President's speech was frequently interrupted by applause and he was cheered as he concluded.

The text of the President's speech is as follows:

"I look upon this body of men who are graduating today with a peculiar interest. I feel like congratulating them that they are living in a day not only so interesting because fraught with change, but also because so responsible. Days of responsibility are the only days that count in time, because they are the only days that give test of quality. They are the only days when manhood and purpose is tried out as if by fire.

"I need not tell you young gentlemen that you are not like an ordinary graduating class of one of our universities. The men in those classes look forward to the life which they are to lead after graduation with a great many questions in their mind. Most of them do not know exactly what their lives are going to develop into. Some of them do not know what occupations they are going to follow. All of them are conjecturing what will be the line of duty and advancement and the ultimate goal of success for them."

"There is no conjecture for you. You have enlisted in something that does not stop when you have come here, for you then only begin to realize it, which only then begins to be filled with the full richness of its meaning; and you can look forward with absolute certainty to the sort of thing that you will be obliged to do."

Old Days in Army Devil.

"This has always been true of graduating classes at West Point, but the certainty that some of the older classes used to look forward to was a very dull certainty. Some of the old days in the army. I fancy, were not very interesting days."

"But in your case there are many extraordinary possibilities, because, gentlemen, no man can certainly tell you what the immediate future is going to be either in the history of this country or in the history of the world. It is not by accident that the present great war came in Europe. Every element was there and the contest had to come, sooner or later, and it is not going to be by accident that the results are worked out, but by purpose—the purpose of the men who are strong enough to have guiding minds and indomitable wills, when the time for decision and settlement comes."

"And the part that the United States

AMERICAN TROOPS ROUT BIGGEST VILLA BAND IN CHIHUAHUA

Force of 25 Surprised in Canyon; Three Killed in Dash-ing Running Fight.

FIELD HEADQUARTERS, GEN. PERSHING, June 13, via radio to Columbus, N. M., June 13.—The finishing blow was given the largest surviving band of Villa followers in Chihuahua at daylight, June 9, by 20 members of the Thirteenth United States Cavalry under Capt. Otto W. Miller, in a dashing fight in a canyon 20 miles north of Santa Clara, near Chihuahua.

The Americans routed 20 Villa bandits, killing three, wounding several and capturing all their horses and saddles, some rifles and several thousand rounds of ammunition.

A night ride brought the Americans into the canyon at daylight. Rushing at a gallop they rounded a turn within 200 yards of where the bandits were encamped in a grove. It was a complete surprise. There was a headlong rush and the Villa followers, who were half-clad, grabbed rifles and fought from behind trees.

The other injured, whose names were not learned, were taken to their homes by automobile. Rice's houseman said he heard one of the men say his name was Gardner.

FOX TROT AND CANDIDACY PUT WEIGHT ON GOV. MAJOR

Activities Prove Healthful for Sprightly Executive, Who Now Tips Scale at 152 Pounds.

Fox-trotting and running for Vice President agree with Gov. Major, and none is a more tentative candidate for the vice presidential nomination.

The Governor, it was learned today, weighs himself every morning. When no other scale is available he drops a coin in the slot of an automatic hefting machine in a hotel lobby.

Returning to the Mexican bivouac the Americans routed the bandits, who abandoned everything and fled to the mountains. For four hours the Americans continued the pursuit, climbing over the mountains, afoot and fighting from the shelter of rocks. Several Mexicans were shot but neither their bodies nor the wounded were found.

The bandit had only beef and coffee.

This bandit is said to have been the largest surviving remnant of the force of Candelaria Cervantes, who was killed three weeks ago in a brush with Americans, regarded as the most important accomplishment of the campaign.

Citizens Who Enroll Expected to Be Reimbursed for Expenses.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Expenses of citizens who enroll for the army training camps this summer will be paid by the Federal Government, according to an announcement to day by Congressman Martin B. Madden. Reimbursement for transportation, uniforms and the fee of $25 for sustenance is certain, he said.

The Secretary of War is being authorized by the army reorganization bill to meet such expenses of the camps.

Although the bill probably will not be passed until the close of the session, the Madden says, will be effective July 1 and a $1,200,000 appropriation became available on that date.

HUGHES REPEATS THAT HE STANDS FOR AMERICANISM

Anybody Supporting Me Is Supporting Out-and-Out American Policy, He Says.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Charles E. Hughes, in response to questions put to him today by newspaper men in regard to his attitude toward the support offered him by the German-Americans, said it was "one of undiluted Americanism."

"And I stated my position very clearly," the Republican presidential candidate said. "In my telegram to the convention, My attitude is one or undiluted Americanism, and anybody that supports me is supporting an out-and-out American and an out-and-out American policy, positively nothing else."

Undiluted Americanism.

Mr. Hughes dictated his statement on "undiluted Americanism" in response to repeated requests of interviewers and in the face of his previously announced determination to say nothing further on the issues of the day until his formal notification of nomination. He met the correspondents by appointment and after discussing his plans informally for a few minutes, dictated the statement.

It was the only statement he made during his talk with newspaper men that he would permit to go out as authorized by him.

At the same time, it was made clear to callers, that the nominee had used what he thought was the most emphatic language he could have used on this subject in his telegram last Saturday to Chairman Harding of the Republican national convention. Leaders at the Hughes headquarters were genuinely surprised that doubt should have remained as to the nominee's attitude on this point.

Mr. Hughes, it was said, intends to meet this doubt, now that it has been raised, in a manner which he believes will clear it up and place him in a light which cannot possibly be misunderstood. It will be a long campaign and a strenuous campaign, according to the present outlook at headquarters, and there will be ample opportunity, it is felt, between now and November to get into detail on every issue before the American people. This the nominee intends to do, he said.

When the next question was asked, he said he believed the nominee was employing the chairs in the arena.

Edward F. Galt, Democratic National Committeeman of Missouri, found when he visited the Coliseum in the morning there was not the sound of a hammer to be heard. He said he hoped to have the trouble adjusted during the day, so that the Coliseum would be ready before night. Everything was to have been completed by noon today.

There were some odd jobs being done when the union men walked out.

One Session Admission for Each $5
Subscribed Up to $50; Session Passes for Big Givers.

Tickets of admission to the Democratic national convention are being distributed to convention fund contributors on the second floor at 510 Locust street.

When the doors were opened at 9 o'clock a crowd was waiting and there was a steady stream of card-holders all forenoon.

Miss L. L. Werly of the Business Men's League and a force of clerks from the Third National Bank attended on the distribution. Cards had been sent to contributors informing them that tickets would be issued in proportion to the amount contributed by the addressee. Envelopes containing the allotted tickets were arranged alphabetically and were given out when the corresponding cards were presented.

The basis of distribution is a session ticket for each $5 contributed, up to $50, to Chairman Harding of the Republican national convention. Leaders at the Hughes headquarters were genuinely surprised that doubt should have remained as to the nominee's attitude on this point.

Want the submission of the names of Gov. Major, Roger Sullivan, Gov. Morehead of Nebraska and Senator Owen.

Sam B. Cook, a Jefferson City banker and former Secretary of State, has started a movement to "save Gov. Major's face." Cook is urging upon the leaders of the Major campaign that John H. Atwood, instead of nominating Major should announce that Major had withdrawn as a candidate in favor of Vice President Marshall. Cook's plan is that Alabama shall yield to Missouri, and that Atwood shall then make a speech announcing that Gov. Major, for the good of the party, would step aside to permit the nomination by acclamation of Vice President Marshall.

See Major's Chances Waning.

The Major supporters, among whom Cook has been a leader, have realized for several weeks and particularly since the nomination of Charles W. Fairbanks by the Republicans, that there was no possibility for Major to win the nomination. With this knowledge they have been casting about for a scheme which would "let him down easy." Cook's suggestion found much favor with Missourians, but is said to have run against a snub when it was suggested to Major.

Judge W. W. Graves, in charge of the Major headquarters in the Planters Hotel, said this morning that Major would not withdraw, and that his name would be presented to the convention. Atwood has not arrived in St. Louis.

COL. W. M. FAIRMAN, DELEGATE OF 80, WEARS QUAIN CLOTHES

Regrets That Democrats' Capacity for Consuming Liquor Decreases as They Grow Older.

Col. William M. Fairman of Pennsylvania, a delegate, attracted much attention in the lobby of the Jefferson Hotel this morning on account of the cut of his coat and the style of his straw hat. Col. Fairman, who is 80 years old, and who says that nearly all of his left side was shot away by Confederate soldiers during the Civil War, wore a home-spun woolen suit of a very quaint pattern. The coat was square cut, and reached his knees. The lapels were six inches wide. He wore a standing collar which did not touch his neck at all. His straw hat was made of a very coarse braid, and had a high crown, and slightly up-curved brim. "A lot of us Democrats are unfortunately growing old," Col. Fairman remarked, "but the worst thing about it is that our capacity for consuming liquor seems to be diminishing as we get older."

At that hour—10 a. m., hundreds of delegates and visitors were in the lobby of the hotel, and there was not a customer in the bar.

MAJOR BADGES HANDED AROUND AS CONVENTION ADMISSIONS

Cunningly Designed So as to Resemble the Regulation Ribbon Given to Elected Delegates.

Major-Vice-President badges, cunningly designed to represent official badges of delegates to the Democratic national convention were distributed by hundreds in hotels and barrooms of St. Louis last night. Today, many persons wearing the badges say they were informed the badges would give them admission to the Coliseum.

Each door of the Coliseum will be in charge of a doorkeeper selected by the national committee. There also will be at each door one or more policemen under a Police Board appointed by Gov. Major, who, while having no direct authority as to who shall be admitted, will actually be able to pass many persons through the doors.

NICHOLAS M. BELL OREGON ALTERNATE TO CONVENTION

Nicholas M. Bell of St. Louis probably will cast one of the 10 votes of Oregon in the Democratic national convention. Bell was made an alternate by National Committee man Will R. King of Oregon this morning. He is expecting that one of the Oregon delegates will be absent from the hall long enough for him to vote as a delegate for the renomination of Wilson and Marshall.

"I lived in Oregon many years ago," Bell said, "and I was a delegate to a national convention right after the war. The Oregon delegation is instructed for Wilson and Marshall, and that is my ticket, even if I am from Missouri."

Col. Bell has been a bitter opponent of the Major vice presidential candidacy.

The 20 delegates from Michigan, headed by a brass band, arrived in St. Louis this morning. The Michigan delegation has headquarters in the tea room at Hotel Jefferson. The delegates marched through the hotel shouting for Wilson and Marshall.

Snapshot of "Suffrage Tableau," Taken During Final Rehearsal

Today Preparatory to Presentation in "Golden Lane" Demonstration

THIS is the "suffrage tableau"—the silent plea for votes-for-women—which delegates to the Democratic national convention will see tomorrow morning when on their way out Locust street for the opening of the national convention.

A Post-Dispatch photographer took this photograph this morning at a rehearsal held on the steps of the old Art Museum, at Nineteenth and Locust streets, where the tableau is to be staged tomorrow.

Starting at 10 a. m. the women will hold this pose for 15 minutes, after which they will rest for a like period. The tableau pose will then be resumed for 15 minutes, alternating thus until noon, when the women will have posed eight times in tableau.

The 13 figures in white, holding shields, represent the 12 states and Alaska, which have granted suffrage to women; the figures in white, at the right, represent the states which have granted partial suffrage, and the figures in black, with their hands chained, represent the states in which women are not given any voice in elections. Missouri is among these states. In the foreground are women representing nations which have recognized women's rights. The figure of Liberty, standing at the top, crowns the galaxy of states. This tableau will be part of the "Golden Lane" demonstration.

and his authority was civil, not military. I can teach you nothing of military power, but I am instructed by the Constitution to appoint you for constitutional and patriotic purposes. And that is the only use you care to be put to.

"We have drawn our people, as you know, from all parts of the world and we have been somewhat disturbed recently, gentlemen, because some of those, though I believe a very small number, whom we have drawn into our citizenship, have not taken into their hearts the spirit of America and have loved other countries more than they loved the country of their adoption.

Defines Americanism.

"We have talked a great deal about Americanism. It ought to be a matter of pride with us to know what Americanism really consists in. Americanism consists in utterly believing in the principles of America and placing first the welfare of our country. We ought not to let any man come into our country who is not a good American. He ought to know at every step of his action that the motive that lies behind what he does is a motive, which no American need be ashamed of for a moment. Now we ought to put this test to every man we know.

"We ought to let it be known that nobody that does not put America first can concern us. But we ought to set them the example. We ought to teach them the example by thinking American thoughts, by entertaining American purposes, and those thought and purpose will stand the test of example anywhere in the world, for they are intended for the betterment of mankind.

"You have heard of the Monroe Doctrine, gentlemen. You know that we are already spiritual partners with both continents of this hemisphere and that America means something which is bigger even than the United States, and that we stand here with the glorious power of this country ready to swing it out into the field of action whenever liberty and independence and political integrity are threatened anywhere in the western Hemisphere.

"One of the men expected to call today is former United States Senator W. Murray Crane of Dalton, Mass., member of the subcommittee, to arrange a date and place for the official notification to Mr. Hughes of his nomination. It was reported that Crane also would discuss with Mr. Hughes the selection of a chairman of the Republican National Committee.

One of the first developments of today at Mr. Hughes' headquarters was an announcement by La Fayette B. Gleason, secretary of the Republican national convention, and also of the New York State Republican Committee, which indicated that it will be several days before any decision is reached on the question of the man who is to succeed Charles D. Hales as chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Gleason said that a subcommittee of the National Committee would, in a few days, call upon the nominee to discuss the subject.

Another development was the announcement from the candidate's headquarters that moving pictures would be employed to aid his campaign. It is planned to throw on the screen throughout the country pictures of Mr. Hughes, "in order that the people may again become familiar with Charles E. Hughes because he has for so long a time been virtually out of public life."

President Wilson arrived here at 9:30 a. m. His yacht left New York, where he boarded it at 3 a. m., carrying the President and Mrs. Wilson, and when it anchored in the Hudson off the academy grounds, a national salute of 21 guns was fired and answered from the yacht. A troop of cavalrymen escorted Mr. and Mrs. Wilson to the parade grounds.

Civil Power Superior.

"You know that one thing in which our forefathers were wise was this, that the civil power is superior to the military power in the United States. Once and again the people of the United States have so admired some great military man as to make him President of the United States, when he became Commander in Chief of all the forces of the United States, but he was Commander in Chief because he was President, not because he had been trained to arms

BRYAN OTHERS NOTHING HIMSELF

Suggests Platform Should Be So Written as to Attract Progressives.

William J. Bryan, three-time nominee of the Democratic party for the presidency, arrived in St. Louis this morning to attend the Democratic national convention, which opens at the Coliseum tomorrow noon. He is without official standing in the convention, having been defeated for a delegation to the Nebraska primaries, and he is to sit in the press section as a special writer for the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

At the Hotel Jefferson Bryan met his wife and his brother, Charles Bryan. The Post-Dispatch reporter he announced: "I have come here absolutely without plans. I came first as a Democrat to attend the convention and secondly, to report the convention."

Bryan gave out a statement setting forth the view that the Democratic party would have an exceptional opportunity to win the Progressive party vote. As the nominees of the Democratic convention seem to be determined upon, this would have to be done by the planks in the platform. Bryan did not suggest what planks should be placed in the platform for this purpose.

Does Not Favor Dry Plank.

When he was asked whether he would appear before the Resolutions Committee to urge a prohibition plank, as some of the Nebraska delegates have said he would do, he replied: "I think it would be very unwise for me to put a prohibition plank in the platform."

He went on to say that the "brewery delegates from Nebraska had no right to speak for him." "I was defeated for delegate by the liquor interests of Nebraska," he said, "because I favored prohibition in that State, and in spite of the fact that I had stood, on several occasions, and had published in my paper that I did not think it was wise for the Democratic national convention to put a prohibition plank into its platform."

Bryan said he much preferred to attend the convention as a private citizen, rather than to be a delegate representing "the most unconscionable group of sordid men that have ever tried to corrupt American politics."

"I am proud to be against them," he said, "and I am proud to have their opposition."

He said a number of the Nebraska delegates were his friends and that some of these, though not prohibitionists, would not take orders from the liquor interests. Of the others, he said, "the bohemia of the pretense—that they are friends of Mr. Wilson is shown by the fact that 900 of their supporters—ugh to swing the election—voted for an unknown Dryvillian in Western Nebraska, over Mr. Wilson, for presidential preference."

In speaking of the possibility of winning the Progressive party vote, he referred to the Bull Moose following as "sheep without a shepherd."

Chance to Win Progressives.

"This is a Democratic opportunity," said Bryan. "The Republicans can now take an account of stock. The situation could hardly be better from a Democratic standpoint. If the two branches of the Republican party had conferred the spirit of friendship and come together on a compromise ticket they might have made a strong front, but instead of that, the regular Republicans are merciless. They showed no respect whatever for the Progressives. The old guard was in control, and a Republican victory would restore to power those who represent the plans and purposes of the plutocratic element."

"The Republican party makes its appeal to the standpat element of the country only. The Progressives are disappointed and disheartened by Roosevelt's refusal to run."

"They are sheep without a shepherd. They are heart-reformed. They are open to Democratic appeal. The Democratic party's opportunity is here. It can and should appeal to the Progressives. The President's splendid reform work and the party's record combine to strengthen this appeal."

Many correspondents called upon Mr. Bryan, and to all he pointed out that he considered the great unfairness of any hypothetical question, such as "What will you do if you are invited to make a speech in the convention?" He refused to answer any such queries.

"I am writing the daily stories of these sessions," he said, "and if I get anything good, or if I have any ideas or impressions which are important, I will put them in my stories, which will appear in the Post-Dispatch. Anything else I may have, I am willing to give to anybody," and he smiled broadly.

British Begin Movement Against German Positions Near Ypres—French Yield Ground Near Douaumont.

Allied Fleet Bombards Bulgarian Coast—Greece Completes Demobilization of Her Army.

PETROGRAD, June 13.—A rumor is in circulation here that the Russians have occupied Cernowitz, capital of the Austrian province of Bukowina. The rumor lacks official confirmation, but it has been given color by the capture of Dobronovitz, a commanding point 10 miles to the northeast. The Russian line here extends to Okna. From both these points good roads lead direct to Cernowitz, and, according to military authorities, they are the only points in this direction capable of defense.

A telegram received from Bucharest, Rumania, says the Austrian army has evacuated Cernowitz and moved to a line four miles to the west.

The continued successes of the Russians recorded in the official communication are the more surprising, as the Austrian advance, appeared to have rallied their forces and offered extremely stubborn resistance. This is indicated by the fact that they were able to mass sufficient forces in the vicinity of Kolki, north of Lutsk, to cause the Russians to retreat across the Styrian River.

FURIOUS COUNTER ATTACKS. Not only here, but at other points on the Volhynian front, furious counter-attacks characterized the last 40 hours of fighting, but failed to check, except momentarily, the force of the Russian advance.

The following details of the fighting have been received:

"In the course of the engagement near Rostovka (on the Styrian, near Lutsk), one of our recently formed elements captured 18 officers and 1185 German soldiers and 26 officers and 742 Austrian soldiers.

"South of Lutsk, on the Iwia front, the enemy beat a hasty retreat. We are pressing closely on his heels.

"In Galicia, in the region of the villages of Gorodok and Verbovetska, north of Tarnopol, the enemy attacked repeatedly and furiously, but was repulsed on the morning of the 11th. In this action our gallant distinguished itself by sustaining gusts of fire with which it met all the enemy's attacks.

"In the region of Bobulintza, to the north of Buczac, the Austrians, assisted by German forces brought to this region, desperately opposed us with a series of counter attacks, to which our troops replied by further attacks, but were forced to give ground a little at this point. The fighting continues with ever-increasing desperation.

"In the region south of the Dniester our troops were yesterday already near the Zaleszsky bridgehead, fighting for the suburbs of Cernowitz, where heavy explosions were observed. The enemy blew up a bridge near the village of Mal, east of Cernowitz.

"The total number of prisoners taken by Gen. Lechitsky is 30,000, all belonging to Hungarian infantry and cavalry."

GERMAN OFFENSIVE IN NORTH. That the Germans are attempting a diversion on the Northern front is revealed by the official communication, which says:

"On the right wing of the Riga fortress the Germans opened an offensive north of the Tirlu marsh and were repulsed, after which our troops made a fresh advance.

"On the whole front of the Jacobstadt positions, on the morning of the eleventh, the Germans opened a sudden violent artillery and rifle fire. Enemy columns then began to advance at some places, but everywhere were driven back to their trenches by our fire.

"On the night of the eleventh strong German forces, after artillery preparation, took the offensive south of Drisztina, and in the face of our concentrated fire were obliged to retire.

"In the region south of Krasnoe, the enemy, on the night of the eleventh, opened a violent artillery fire and then took the offensive with considerable forces. South of the village of Kotchany, enemy detachments succeeded in penetrating the wood west of Kotchany, but under our artillery fire and a hail of hand grenades were compelled to evacuate the greater part of the wood.

"On the banks of the Jasloiska River we repulsed an enemy offensive."

GERMANS ATTACK NEAR THIAUMONT

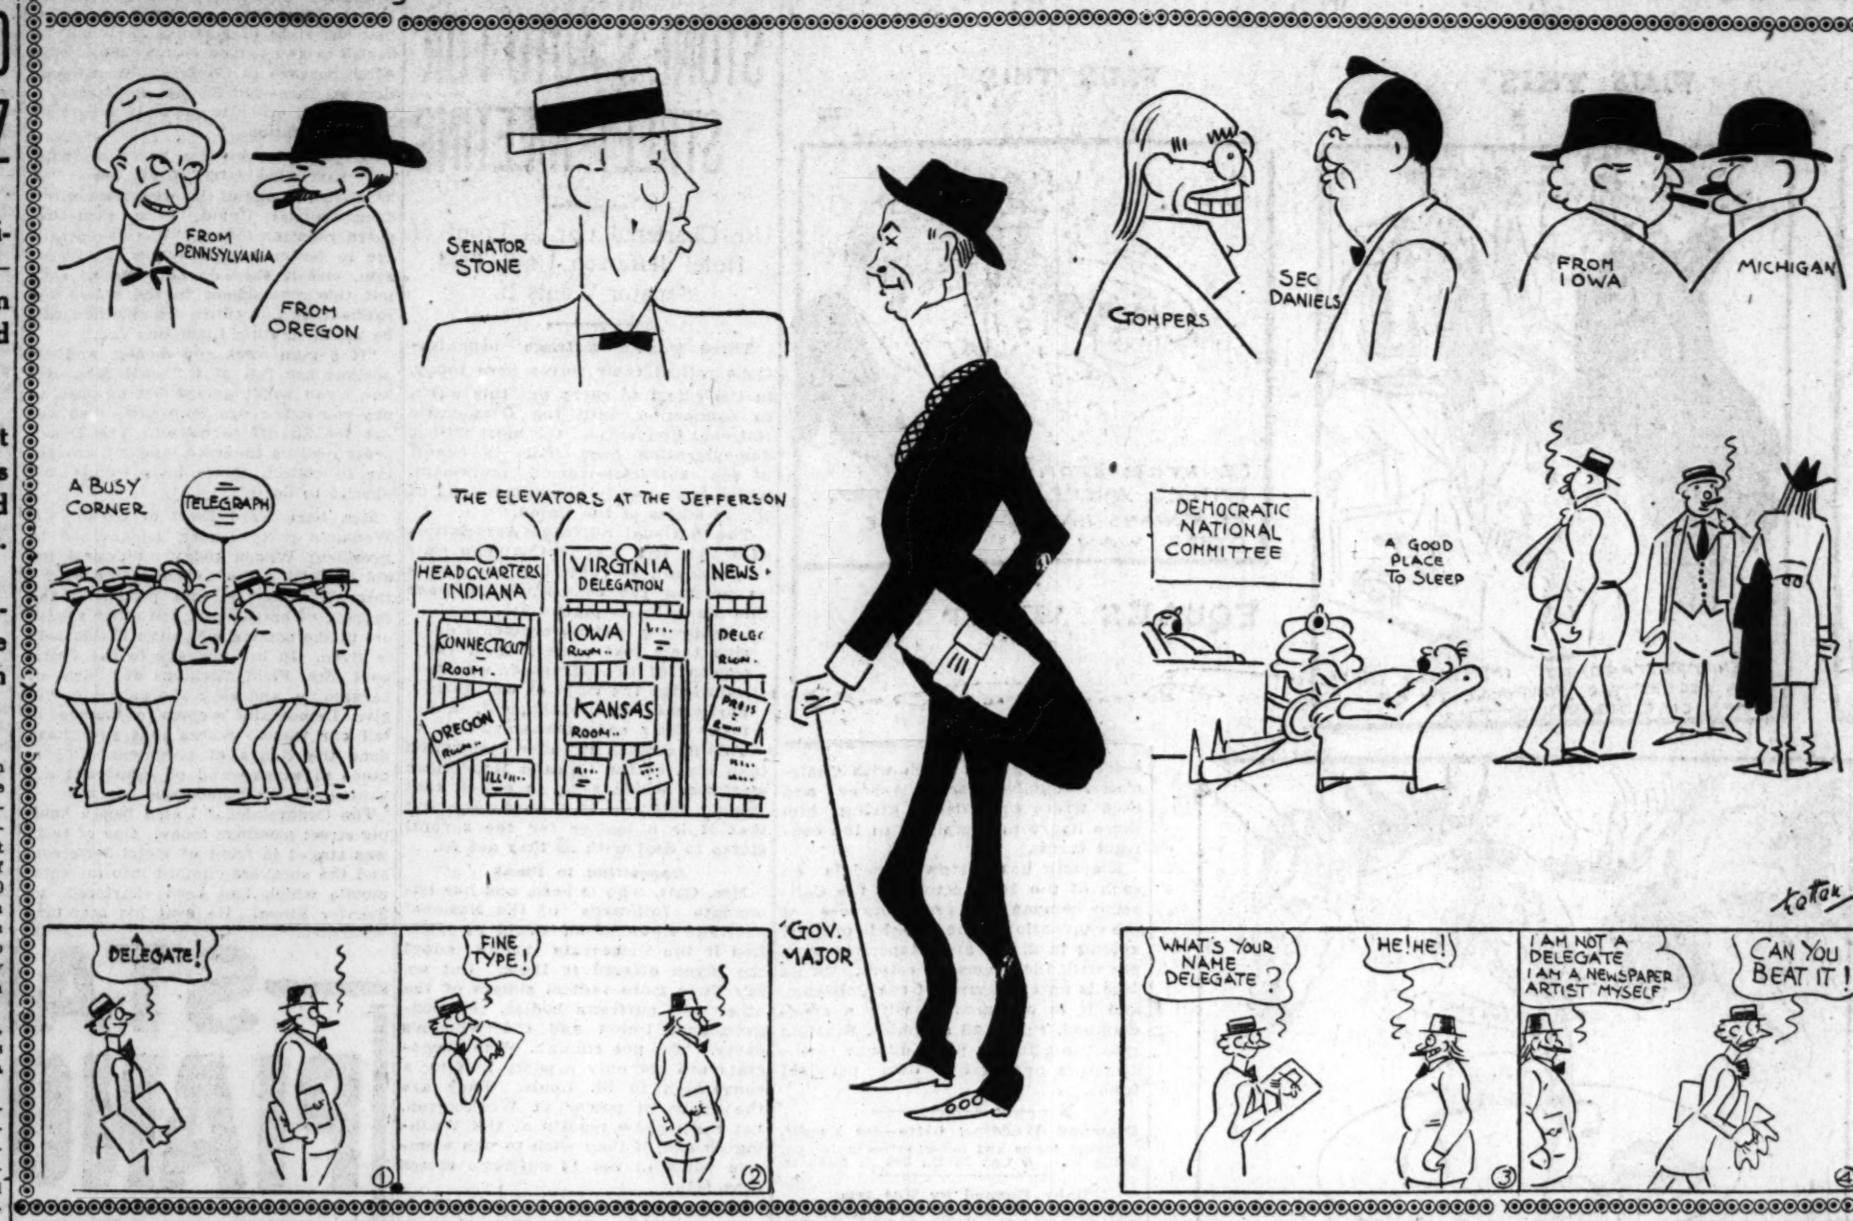

PARIS, June 13.—German troops last night renewed the attack over the whole section of the Verdun front west of Thiaumont Farm. They succeeded in entering some advanced trenches at one point, but were repulsed elsewhere, the French War Office announced today.

The French trenches penetrated by the Germans are on the eastern slope of Hill 321.

West of the Meuse there were no important actions during the night. The bombardment was heavy in the region of Châtilloncourt.

The Germans have brought up fresh effectives, reformed their lines and advanced their artillery to positions from which they have begun a methodical pounding of the main French defenses,

THREAT OF TRAGEDY IN SULLIVAN'S CANDIDACY, SAYS WILLIAM A. WHITE

Backed by Few State Bosses, It Could Be Used as Powerful Patronage Club Over President, Kansan Declares.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE.

The convention is in its frivolous stage. No one takes any situation seriously. Roger Sullivan's vice presidential candidacy, at this moment, the only really serious thing in the convention, is received as a gorgeous joke. Delegates do not realize that Sullivan is not in need of advertising, that he has no reason for grand-standing, and that he could get half a dozen state bosses with him if he disliked Wilson—as, for instance, Murphy of New York, Reed of Missouri, Taggart of Indiana and Bailey of Texas—they might use the nomination of Sullivan as a patronage club that would force the President nearly anything they would ask.

For Sullivan on the Democratic ticket would defeat it; no one knows this better than Sullivan and the big State bosses who are liable to be attracted by his game. Yet if the President is going ahead for the next four years as he goes during the last four, recognizing the bosses only under pressure, now is the time to know it, and Roger C. Sullivan is the handle of the front door that will open into that query. Yet the convention regards the Sullivan boom as a joke; and its opposing by Jim Ham Lewis, who is a kind of political Charley Chaplin, has set the corridor.

TIME-OF-DEMOCRATIC JOKES.

Another convention joke is the conflict between the stories of the time when the President shall be nominated. One story declares that President Wilson, being superstitious, has sent word that he desires no nomination on Friday.

MAN DIES AFTER INJURY BY AUTO WHICH DID NOT STOP

Police Obtain Only Vague Description of Speeding Touring Car With Two Occupants.

George Bailey, 46 years old, of 4060 Delmar boulevard, died at the Deaconess Hospital at 11:45 o'clock last night from injuries he received late Saturday night when he was run down by a speeding touring car at Sarah street and Washington boulevard. The touring car was going west at high speed and there were two men in it. The car did not stop after hitting Bailey.

Both of Bailey's legs were broken and he was injured internally. The police obtained only a vague description of the car and so far have been unable to determine its identity.

NEBRASKA GOVERNOR HERE WITH HIS ROOM FOR VICE PRESIDENT

Moorehead Says If He Withdraws His Delegates May Vote as They Please.

Nebraska's candidate for Vice President, Gov. John H. Moorehead, arrived in St. Louis this morning at the head of the State's 16 delegates and 16 alternates, supported by friends and followers, who brought the entire party up to 125. Gov. Moorehead said his entire State delegation is instructed to vote for him for Vice President, but that he did not know what other delegates he would get. In event that he has no chance for the nomination, he said, he will withdraw and leave his delegates free to vote as they please. He does not know whether any of them favor Gov. Major.

A party of 58 Californians, including 26 delegates and an equal number of alternates, arrived this morning. Among them were United States Senator James D. Phelan, Congressman John E. Raker, Congressman William Koestner, Congressman V. S. Church and Postmaster C. W. Fay of San Francisco. These delegates said they would vote for the administration's candidate for Vice President.

The Famous and Barr Welfare Association will be represented by "The Pretty Mrs. Smith" at the Park Theatre tonight.

The Famous and Barr Welfare Association is the social organization of Famous and Barr Co., and the theater party is the first of the midsummer season social events. The arrangements were made by Sam Sincoff, chairman of the Entertainment Committee. It is expected that "The Pretty Mrs. Smith" will play to a capacity house tonight. The Famous Farm will be opened Saturday, June 7, where the members of the Famous and Barr Welfare Association may spend the weekend during the summer months. The farm is located on the bluffs of the Meramec, at Farmington.

BRYAN SAYS SEASON FOR DEMOCRATS TO HUNT THE PROGRESSIVES IS OPEN

Declares They Have Felt Colonel's Snub More Keenly Than Stand-Patters—Points to Menace of Money in Party Management

By W. J. Bryan.

The first thought of the delegates as they assemble is how to make success at the polls more certain. They have been quick to see the advantage to be gained from an appeal to the Progressive vote. From now until election day the season will be open, so to speak, for the hunting of Progressives.

They are bitterly resentful because that his judgment should prevail. of the treatment which they received at the hands of the Republican convention. They now see very clearly what the progressives are doing to the hunting of Progressives.

They are bitterly resentful because that his judgment should prevail. From the standpoint of Col. Roosevelt's personal fortunes, his (Perkins') judgment was good; from the standpoint of defeating President Wilson, Mr. Perkins' judgment was had no thought of making any concessions whatever to the Progressive party.

They demand of the Progressives not only a surrender of their candidate, but a surrender also of the political principles and fundamental convictions.

Resentful. Theard Roosevelt.

And to make the Democratic opportunity more promising, the Progressives are almost as resentful toward Col. Roosevelt as they are toward the stand-pat leaders. They expected more of the Colonel than they did of the reactionary Republicans and, therefore, felt the snub more keenly when he gave them the marble heart. The scales have fallen from their eyes: not the Fairbanks scales, for they never had any of that kind in their eyes, but they did worse. Roosevelt; they allowed him to write the platform and commit the party to a militancy which has no place in the thought of the peaceful multitude that marched under the Colonel's banner.

The Progressives now see the menace of money in party management. Mr. Perkins put up, or secured, the money, while the Progressive masses furnished nothing but the votes. When Col. Roosevelt was compelled to choose between the men who stood for the money and the masses who stood only for the votes, that his (Perkins') judgment was good; as Mr. White says, that "his (Perkins') judgment should prevail."

Col. Roosevelt could not afford to be defeated again as the candidate of one faction of the Republican party, and he is too partisan a Republican to assume responsibility for re-electing a Democratic President—when he thought four years ago he could defeat him.

Progressives. New Democrats.

It is different with the Progressive voters. Hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of them are nearer to the Democratic party than they are or ever will be to the Republican party. They appreciate the substantial reforms which have been secured by President Wilson and the Democratic Senate and House.

They are not afraid to trust the President for four years more. They feel the same as Bainbridge Colby, the man who put Col. Roosevelt in nomination before the Progressive convention at Chicago, who since the convention is quoted as saying:

"The Progressives propose to do a little thinking and leave the tantrums to others. Among other things, they wish to do justice to a President who has been called upon to grapple with problems almost beyond human faculty and who has endured with unflinching steadiness a volume of criticism which has had no parallel in our history since Lincoln's time. If the President has stumbled, like Lincoln, it has been in the right direction."

And the Progressives have a genuine liking for the Progressive element in the Democratic party—an element which is overwhelming in the majority whenever an issue brings out a division. The President's attitude on reforms, the progress of his definite devotion to reforms, and the yearning of the rank and file Progressives for a party that can be trusted to stand for reforms—these three factors combine to point the way to a Democratic victory. It is evident that many of the Democratic delegates appreciate the opportunity to see if the road to success.

SWears Lambert Girl Threatened To Kill Herself

Josephine Davis Testifies Dead Chum Was Depressed Over Defection of Orpet.

Special to the Post-Dispatch
WAUKESHA, Ill., June 12.—Josephine Davis testified today that Marion Lambert, for the alleged murder of whom Will H. Orpet is on trial here, threatened to kill herself if it proved true that Orpet had transferred his affections to another.

The schoolgirl witness, called by the State, continued to testify for the defense. She completely repudiated previous stories of the cheerfulness of Marion, her chum, and told of fits of depression over fear that she was in a delicate condition and later when this fear became less acute, after Jan. 20, over the reported defection of Orpet.

"When Marion learned of Orpet's engagement to Celeste Youker," said Miss Davis, "we framed up a letter to Orpet, but no reply was received. It was on Feb. 6, when Marion had her eighteenth birthday party, that she threatened to kill herself. She was cheerful, overjoyed, during the party, but when she was alone with me she cried.

"It is seeing all those girls in their so happy that makes me think of what is on my mind," she told me. "Honest, if Billie has thrown me over, I'll kill myself."

"I laughed at her, just to try to get her out of that mood, and then she laughed, too. I said: 'You won't let me tell everything to your mother now; shall I tell her what I know after death?' She laughed and said: 'Well, I guess not. There will be gossip, anyway, and we might as well give them something to gossip about.'

Miss Davis' testimony attracted a crowd to the courtroom today. Miss Davis appeared to have passed a sleepless night.

Each juror wore a pink carnation in his buttonhole today.

The direct examination of the witness was resumed by David R. Joslyn, Assistant Prosecutor.

"What are the further changes you wish to make in your testimony?" inquired Joslyn. The young woman made no reply for some minutes. She twisted a tiny handkerchief around her nervous fingers.

There is every indication that the Colonel will not make public announcement of his purpose until the meeting of the National Committee June 25. This meeting will be held either in New York or Chicago, and at it the committee will act under authority vested in it by the

WOMAN'S PARTY DEMANDS ACTION NOW BY CONGRESS

Enactment of Suffrage Amendment Before Election Price Asked of Democrats.

REFUSES TO COMPROMISE

Cabinet Officer Said to Have Been Emissary to Headquarters Here.

By Marguerite Martyn.

The new organization known as the Woman's Party counts only results. Suffragists have theorized, have argued, have preached, have talked for the last 45 years. For that many years the Susan B. Anthony amendment has been pending in committee.

The National Suffrage Association, headed by such old campaigners as Dr. Anna H. Shaw and Mrs. Catt, have got into the habit of campaigning each successive year that they are loath to give up the job, say the leaders of the younger organization.

"We don't want promises or platitudes," explains Miss Alice Paul, chief exponent of the Woman's Party. "Deeds, not words, are what we ask. It is immediate action in Congress that we demand. And that is all we want."

A group of the party's leaders—Miss Anna Martin, chairman of the national committee; Miss Mabel Vernon, Miss Maud Younger, Miss Paul and others—met in their headquarters on the main floor of the Hotel Jefferson last night, going over events of their first day's attendance upon the Democratic hosts, and adding up results. Some of the achievements recorded were as follows:

First, they landed at the Jefferson without having engaged either room or place to hang their banners. They planted themselves and their baggage in the midst of the lobby, already over-flowing with the most important members of the Democratic legions. Patiently they withstood being snubbed, sneered at or ignored by bellboys and hotel greeters, until, presently, the head of arrangements for the convention, Senator Tamm, spied them.

stairs for living quarters, ample space just outside the main parlor downstairs for a headquarters, provided with a big flag-draped table, dragged in by the astonished hotel men.

Achievement No. 2 was visit from a man high up in the councils of the Democratic party. Discussion of this incident was in whispers, although it was admitted that the visitor did not pussyfoot when he came calling. And this man came to inquire what was the least the woman's party would accept in exchange for support of the Democrats.

"Will you accept a plank in the platform?" the visitor is reported to have asked. And the spokeswoman for the woman's party insists that she said "No."

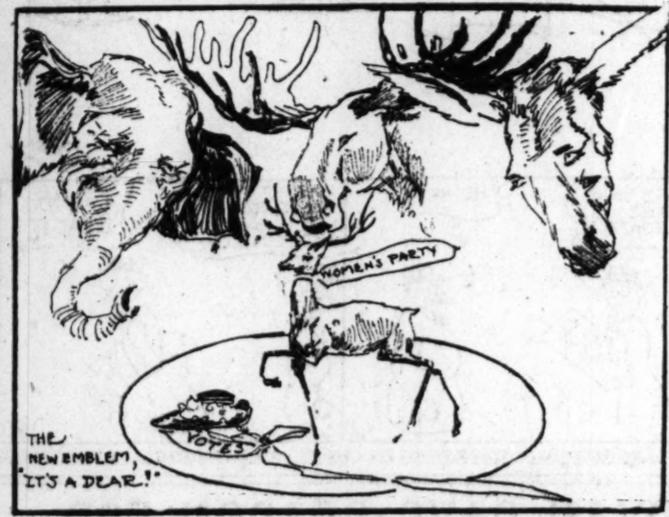

"Will you accept indorsement of the amendment and the promise of action next year?"

"No," again said the woman. "Nothing but action now before the next election."

And these women do not always threaten. Sometimes they come down from their defiant position and rest their club and offer to trade.

"We already have organized a greater number of votes than were required to swing the election four years ago," they say.

"These votes are all in doubtful states, and so concentrated that we can control them absolutely," the women said. "Although most of our women are Democrats, we will vote against you and campaign against you unless you do as we ask. On the other hand, if you take action upon this amendment now and there are enough favorable votes in Congress to carry it we will furnish you speakers and campaign for you from the start."

Visitor a Cabinet Officer.

To deduce just who the important visitor had been was a matter of putting two and two and several more fragments of gossip together. I got so far along as to discover that it was a Cabinet officer—and there was but one Cabinet officer in town yesterday.

Achievement No. 3—A call upon Senator Stone, who is to be chairman of the resolutions committee, which makes the platform, and the result of which was that Senator Stone smiled upon the visitors.

"And always in Washington," exclaimed Miss Maud Younger, chief suffrage lobbyist in Congress, "he has looked the other way when he could manage to see us first."

Other achievements were to be gleaned from a register, signed with the names, it seemed, of every man who chanced to pass that corner, witnessing each his conversion to the platform of the woman's party.

Adding up these accomplishments, the women obtained encouragement, and some of them, at least, were allowing themselves mild enthusiasm.

But they have always with them a leavening force of uncompromising idealism and matter-of-factness in Miss Alice Paul—plain little, same little person, same smile, same body seems to be in her great gray eyes. "In adding up results of a day's work," she said, "we have to deduct foolish, illiterate, pretentious and words. They don't count at all."

Einstein contended that the contract for the Coliseum had been violated by the failure of the National Committee to deliver to him the tickets for the directors of the Coliseum Co., which were specified in the contract.

Goltra said that the Coliseum directors had asked for 28 balcony tickets and five or six boxes. He said that he had obtained the balcony seats for them, but that he had nothing to do with the distribution of box seats.

Einstein, when seen today by a Post-Dispatch reporter about the use of the tickets in question, said he acted upon his own initiative, and without consulting the directors of the Coliseum company.

He produced a printed form of the contract, signed by Edward F. Goltra, which reserved for Coliseum directors or their appointees boxes 26 to 32, and 28 seats in the balcony arena. He said these seats are excluded from the contract for every event that takes place in the Coliseum, in order that the directors may have access to the building at all times.

The directors are:

Harford Crawford,
A. G. Einstein,
Lyman T. Hay,
Alexander Hilton,
Richard McCuloch,
Henry Nicolaus,

John E. Pilcher,
John C. Roberts,
William F. Saunders,
August Schlaifly,
A. L. Shapleigh,
Moses Shoenberg,
George W. Simmons.

Einstein said that when he was informed by Manager Robinson yesterday that Chairman McCombs had refused to give him the box seats upon request, and that McCombs had said that "if the contract calls for box seats the contract will be broken," he decided it was time to act for the directors. He said if the contract was to be avoided, any particular there was no telling where it would end.

He said further that he felt the directors were entitled to their seats, as they were on the paper of the Coliseum for $40,000, and had assisted the company in other ways.

Einstein declared he tried unsuccessfully to get in touch with Chairman McCombs over telephone, and then wrote the letter, giving him three hours to comply with the contract terms.

Einstein has bestowed medals on each of the 14 directors of the Coliseum company as remembrances of the convention. The medal is of gold, oblong in shape and suspended on a pin with the American colors. On its face is an engraving of the Coliseum, and it is ornamented with a small diamond, ruby and sapphire. Einstein said the gift is a personal one to the directors out of his own personal funds.

Opposition to Plan.

Mrs. Catt, who is here, and her immediate followers of the National Suffrage Association, would be satisfied if the Democrats would adopt the plan offered to them. But no, say their more radical sisters of the other two suffrage bodies, the Congressional and the Woman's party. "It's not enough. The Democrats are not only a party holding a convention in St. Louis. They are the party in power at Washington. Let them show results at the Washington end, if they wish to win women's votes in the 12 suffrage states next fall."

So the Congressional Union, which is a national body, and the Woman's party, organized at Chicago last week, whose membership is limited to the suffrage states, are demanding that Congress shall act immediately on the Susan B. Anthony amendment to the Constitution.

Three woman suffrage organizations rallied their forces here today, in the effort to carry out this week, in connection with the Democratic National Convention, the most telling demonstration ever made in behalf of the votes-for-women movement, which has already succeeded in 12 of the 48 states of the Union.

The National Suffrage Association, of which Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt is president, is centering its efforts on getting the convention to place this plank in its platform:

Believing that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, we acknowledge the right of women to participate in government, and favor their enfranchisement.

This is much stronger declaration than that of the Chicago Republican platform, which says, in effect, that woman suffrage is a good idea, but that it is a matter for the several states to deal with as they see fit.

Einstein has bestowed medals on each of the 14 directors of the Coliseum company as remembrances of the convention. The medal is of gold, oblong in shape and suspended on a pin with the American colors. On its face is an engraving of the Coliseum, and it is ornamented with a small diamond, ruby and sapphire. SENATOR REED ATTACKS HUGHES' NOMINATION AT COUNTY DINNER

Declares Justice Put Ambition Before Duty—Upholds President's Foreign Policy.

United States Senator James A. Reed in a speech before the Democratic Club of St. Louis County at the Cadillac Hotel last night attacked the nomination of Hughes and upheld President Wilson's foreign policies.

In paying his respects to Republican leaders Reed said:

"Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, who engineered the Republican national convention, is an Englishman. He is so English that he talks like one. There was talk of warfare on some nation. Do you think Senator Lodge would declare war on England? The Republicans propose to attack Germany if they attack anyone, not England."

Reed referred to Hughes as a man who "put ambition before duty."

"The Republicans," he said, "dug into the凹洞 and went into the judiciary to draft a candidate for President."

MOTHERS' CIRCLE TO LEND ITS AID TO FETE FOR BABIES

Assures Interest of 75 Families in Post-Dispatch Milk and Ice Fund.

CONTRIBUTIONS. Previously Acknowledged $465.26

Preparedness is the idea dominant in the minds of Americans today, and in its application to national defense the term has profound meaning. It may be, too, that the girls and boys of St. Louis have imbibed that sentiment in their self-imposed task of saving the lives of those babies who, imperiled by heat and the ailments which attend it, have only the defense that comes from the efforts of the children constituting the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice League. Whatever the moving cause,

MISS NANCY MORFORD.

It is certain that in none of the 11 preceding seasons of the league's activities and successes has there been such a degree of enthusiasm and assured outcome as is apparent in the current one. Behind the young people in this widely proportioned and determined endeavor are hundreds of parents and others from the ranks of elders.

More than 75 families, identified through the mothers with the Chamberlain Park Circle of the Congress of Mothers, have decided to lend themselves actively to the "Children's Day at Delmar" June 20, marking it the occasion of their annual meeting. They will be present afternoon and evening, to enjoy the very and exceptionally attractive features organized by F. Leslie Clemenzen for the dance, hospital and carnival for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. The women of the circle are not only to attend the entertainment in a body, but they are helping in the sales of tickets with splendid effect. Mrs. C. N. Miller is president of the circle and Mrs. J. A. Johnson is chairman for the picnic occasion.

Co-operation by grown people with the 15 children living along Hartford street, who are to give a pretentious benefit entertainment for the same cause the evening of June 20, is also reported, and the financial outcome promises to far outstrip that of last year's affair by the same girls and boys, which was one of the handsomest of that season. These little ones are to produce two comedies and follow with a carnival on the lawn of St. John's Episcopal Church, 3665 Arsenal street.

Two New Hotels in Glacier Park. Two mammoth hotels so designed as to be in keeping with the Rocky Mountains of Montana have been completed in the new Glacier National Park. One is at Glacier Park Station, just within the park gates, and the other is at the end of the automobile highway. The first is fashioned altogether from the timbers of the big fir trees of Montana, Idaho and Washington. The second follows the pattern of the Swiss mountain hotel. It is of native stone combined with the spruce and balsam timbers hewn from the big trees of the McDermott Lake region.

The lobbies of both these hotels are rich with forest decorations. The trunks of giant trees serve as supporting pillars and other giant trees make the gable and roof beams. The walls are covered with the pelts of bear, deer and Rocky Mountain goats. Real camp fires of pine knots are kept burning on the floors of the lobbies. In the surrounding country, linked to these large hotels, are nine villages-in-the-Rockies, each with its hotel. These are at Two Medicine Lake, on the Cut Bank River, at the foot and at the head of St. Mary Lake, at McDermott Lake, at Swiftcurrent Pass, at Gunlight Pass, at Sperry Glacier and at Belton Station. All these have huge fireplaces and picturesque mountain decorations. They also provide excellent hotel accommodations.

DANCE SEASON OPENS TONIGHT

Mayor Will Trip First Number, Provided It's a One-Step.

The dancing season under municipal auspices will open tonight in Dakota Park, Dakota street and Michigan avenue. Dancing will begin at 7:30 o'clock, when Mayor Kiel and his daughter, Miss Edna Kiel, will take the floor and lead the dancers, providing the opening number is a one-step.

Thus far the Mayor has learned but one dance, which he has used on several occasions to inaugurate public functions. Our Hirschbach's orchestra has been engaged to play for the municipal dances each Tuesday and Thursday night during the summer. They will be given in the various public squares about the city.

BUSCH ENTERTAINS 300 PERSONS HERE FOR CONVENTION

Committeemen and Newspaper Men Visit Grant's Farm and Sunset Hill Club.

The biggest entertainment feature of convention week thus far was a main julep party yesterday afternoon at the Grant Farm home of August A. Busch, followed by a dinner at the Sunset Hill Country Club. There were 300 guests, including Cabinet members, National Committee convention delegates and visiting newspaper correspondents.

Harry H. Haver, official entertainer for the New York delegation, provided automobiles for all the guests and aided Busch in entertaining them.

The juleps were served on the lawn of the Busch home. For those who desired refreshments of another kind, there was a strawberry luncheon, presided over by Mrs. Busch.

Assisting the hostess were Miss Lily Busch, Miss Clara Busch, Mrs. Drummond Jones, Miss Mildred Orthwein, Mrs. Eberhard Anheuser and Mrs. Harry Troll.

The visiting notables were escorted over the farm and saw Busch's fine collection of livestock. They were struck by the beauty of the surroundings both at the Busch Farm and at Sunset Inn, where they went for dinner after all the mint juleps had been consumed.

At the dinner speeches were made by Thomas Dawson of the Associated Press, Leroy Vernon of the Chicago News, J. E. Nevin of the International

An Invitation

DELEGATES to the Democratic National Convention of 1916 are invited to employ the broad facilities of Missouri's Oldest Bank—founded in 1847 during the administration of James K. Polk, Democrat—in any manner designed to make their stay in St. Louis a pleasant one.

The new quarters of this historical and progressive institution are numbered among the most imposing banking rooms in America, and so well reflect the ultimate in modern bank equipment, arrangement and decorative scheme that a visit to St. Louis without seeing Boatmen's Bank is generally conceded incomplete.

The officers will esteem it a privilege to be of service to visitors in any manner within their province.

A Letter From One of Our Power Users

May 18th, 1916.

Industrial Department,
Union Electric Light & Power Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Gentlemen:

It gives us great pleasure to be able to testify as to the prompt and excellent service that your company has furnished us since we installed electrical power driven machinery in our present plant. We have operated steam plants, in fact, use steam today for boiling purposes, but we feel confident in saying that the cost of our present service is more economical than the power that we can make for ourselves, and the service I am sure is better. A great deal more satisfactory.

Respectfully yours,

MGC:MR. BEST-CLYMER MFG. CO.
(Signed) M. G. Clymer.

We receive numerous letters similar to the foregoing from our electric power users.

No plant too large or too small for us to operate electrically and economically.

The cost of coal is steadily going up and the cost of electric power service is constantly going down.

Our engineers are at your service for analyzing your power costs. We will show you comparative figures for "Union Electric" service versus isolated plant operation costs. You can call on us without obligation on your part.

E. E. Watson Asks Police to Search is Prostrated.

E. E. Watson, manager of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., reported to the police the disappearance of his mother from his home, last Saturday night, of Miss Blanch Snoddy, 28 years old, his sister-in-law, after a family quarrel.

When she left the Watson home in Overland Park, St. Louis County, she had less than $1 in money, and took no clothing with her except that which she wore.

Miss Snoddy's mother, who is an invalid, and whom the daughter had cared for as her nurse for the last 10 years, is prostrated. Because of Miss Snoddy's aptitude for nursing her relatives have been searching for her in hospitals, where they believe she may have found employment.

CHIEF COUNSEL OF PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD TOO YOUNG

A. Zach Patterson is but 28 and Law Requires Incumbent to Be 30.

WAS MAJOR'S SECRETARY

May Be Removed From Office by Governor or by Quo Warrentio Proceedings.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 13.—A Post-Dispatch reporter, examining records on file here, learned today that A. Zach Patterson, formerly Gov. Major's private secretary, is not qualified because of his age to hold his office as chief counsel for the State Public Service Commission.

Patterson is 28 years old. The Public Utilities Commission act provides that the chief counsel shall possess the same qualifications as required for a Justice of the Missouri Supreme Court. The State Constitution provides that a Justice of the Supreme Court must be not less than 30 years old.

Patterson's place pays $4500 a year, which is $100 more than the salary of the Attorney-General.

May Be Removed.

When the facts concerning Patterson's qualifications for the office he holds were presented to the Attorney-General's office by a reporter, Assistant Attorney-General Sears said that Patterson could be ousted only by Gov.
Major, or by quo warranto proceedings filed by the Attorney-General. In the absence of Attorney-General Barker, who is in St. Louis, Sears stated he was not authorized to state what action would be taken by the Attorney-General.

Gov. Major and Patterson also are in St. Louis.

Patterson's appointment as chief counsel of the Public Service Commission, made by Gov. Major a few weeks ago when John M. Atkinson resigned as the commission's chief counsel to make the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, caused considerable unfavorable comment among Democratic politicians. They considered that Patterson's appointment was for political reasons and that he came into the office with virtually no experience in the practice of law.

It was said to have been the first instance in the State where a man had been elevated from a clerical to the place which requires the services of an able and experienced lawyer.

Patterson came to Jefferson City as stenographer for Judge W. W. Graves of the Supreme Court. While employed in that capacity he studied law and was admitted to the bar. He then went to Carutherville, Mo., to engage in private practice, but returned at the end of four months and once more became a State employee.

Appointed by Major.

A few weeks before Gov. Major left the Attorney-General's office Patterson was made an Assistant Attorney-General.
When Major became Governor
Patterson became his private secretary.
During the latter part of 1915 the Governor appointed Patterson as assistant counsel to the Public Service Commission at a salary of $3600 a year.
Until that time there had been no such officer as assistant counsel, and considerable surprise was expressed that the Governor had created another expensive appointment at the same time that he was wielding an ax on the appropriations for educational and ele-mosynary institutions in an effort to stave off an impending deficit in the State treasury. There was more surprise when Patterson succeeded Atkinson as chief counsel.

Patterson's exact age was obtained from a sworn statement made by him in his application for admission to the bar.
In his affidavit, made before the clerk of the Supreme Court, May 4, 1911, Patterson stated that he was born at Butler, Mo., Oct. 23, 1887.

Patterson Says He Was 30 on Oct. 23 Last.

Zach Patterson, when seen today at Gov. Major's headquarters at the Planters Hotel, told a reporter that he was 30 years old Oct. 23 last and that he was appointed chief counsel of the Public Service Commission on May 1 last.

When told that a reporter had seen the affidavit of his age, filed with the Supreme Court Clerk in 1911, and that it stated that he was born in 1887, Patterson insisted that he was 30 years old.

"I will have to see that affidavit before I will say anything about it," Patterson added, "but any affidavit I made will be correct. Where is that affidavit, anyway? Oh, yes, I guess, on file in the Supreme Court. I don't know anything about that affidavit, but if it has me as anything else than 30 years old or makes me appear younger, it's not right."

10 TO 7 ODDS OFFERED THAT HUGHES WILL WIN ELECTION

One Bet of $6000 to $5000 Made; Commission Pays Out $161,000 on Hughes' Nomination.
NEW YORK, June 13.—Justice Hughes was the favorite yesterday at Belmont Park over President Wilson. Bob Rose wagered $6000 to $5000 with Cad Dog against Wilson and later the latter was offered a wager of $10,000 to $7000 that Mr. Hughes will be the next President of the United States, but this was declined.

Although there was little betting in Wall street yesterday on the campaign, odds of 8 to 5 against Wilson were quoted with the proviso that Roosevelt does not run on a third ticket.

Chester Thompson, a betting commissioner, paid out $161,000 to those who had wagered that Hughes would be nominated.

EARLY MORNING FATIGUE

When you awake in the morning feeling tired out, feeling worse in fact than when you went to bed, you are confronted with one of the characteristic symptoms of neurasthenia. It is due to the run-down condition of the nerves that rest does not bring renewed strength and sleep refresh the tired brain. Overwork and worry are the most frequent causes of this condition.
Neurasthenia is the name given to the common form of nervous debility in which the power to recuperate is gone.

The blood can be built up so that it will increase the supply of needed elements to the weak nerves, and this is the way that the nerves will be reached. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic that especially helps up the nerves because they supply to the blood
the elements that the nerves need.

Many nervous disorders, sometimes chronic ones, have yielded to this tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when other methods failed to give relief. They are certainly worth a trial.

CAN KAISER BEAT PRESIDENT, ASKS NEW YORK WORLD

Declares Hughes to Be German Candidate, and That That Is Vital Issue of Campaign.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The World today prints an editorial under the heading "Can the Kaiser Defeat the President?" which reads:

"I do not like to consider the possibility of a hyphenated vote," says George W. Wickersham, who is Mr. Hughes' most prominent legal, counselor and friend. "Whether Mr. Wickersham and Mr. Hughes like to 'consider it or not, the hyphenated vote is a definite fact that cannot be disregarded."

"No other issue of the campaign is so vital as the issue that this vote presents. The followers of the Kaiser in the United States have set out to destroy President Wilson politically for the crime of being an American President. They have adopted Mr. Hughes as their candidate and made his cause their cause. They have decided that President Wilson must be defeated, because the foreign policies of his administration are not satisfactory to the German Empire."

"Officers of the German-American Alliance in Chicago had indorsed the Hughes nomination almost before the convention had finished its work. The officers of the German societies in Milwaukee, who sent their ultimatum to the Republican party last week, are all cordial in expressing their approval of the Hughes nomination."

Quotes Pro-German Leaders.
"George Sylvester Viereck, editor of the Fatherland, which is the most frank, loyal and sedulous of all the German newspapers in the United States, declares that—

"The nomination of Justice Hughes means the salvation of the Republican party. It is a triumph of genuine Americanism over nativism."

"George von Skal, one of the most active agents of the German propaganda in New York, is as enthusiastic as Mr. Viereck:

"We are convinced that President Wilson is pro-British, and that is the reason we are going to vote against him. Justice Hughes, therefore, will have the support of the German-American Democrats and Republicans, and I think he will be elected."

"Alphonse Goebel of the German-American Alliance, who helped to manage the congressional campaign in behalf of the Gore and McLemore resolutions, is no less exultant than Mr. Viereck and Mr. von Skal:

"I am certain that Justice Hughes will grow as the campaign advances, and that the chances of Mr. Wilson being elected are exceedingly slim."

"Gustav Mayer, publisher of the German Daily Gazette, said in a speech at Philadelphia, Sunday:

"We suggested some weeks ago that Hughes was the most logical man, and with his selection and that of Fairbanks the entire country will rally to the support of the Republican ticket."

"The editor of the Cincinnati Volksblatt says: 'The nomination is a splendid one,' and the Cleveland Watcher and Anzeiger commends Mr. Hughes while attacking President Wilson and Col. Roosevelt:

"We consider it a great boon of the Chicago convention that the people of the United States will not be compelled to choose between the pratt lad in unneutral subservience to England and the advocate of still greater neutrality."

Hughes.

"In the opinion of the Cincinnati Freie Presse: 'Justice Hughes has expressed sentiments which are in accord with the German-American idea of neutrality. We are in thorough sympathy with him and his ideals.'"

"According to the St. Louis Westliche Post, 'The Republican faced a gigantic problem and found a glorious solution.'

"In a long editorial printed yesterday morning the New York Herald cautions the Germans 'not to overdo our business' and not to make the mistake of working too openly for Hughes. After declaring that 'the overwhelming mass of the German-Americans in the country will fall in line for the election of Charles E. Hughes,' it gives this advice to the German voters:

"We Germans will beware of all mistakes in the campaign. Also not to overdo our business. As far as we can see, there is no necessity for German-Americans to work openly in the campaign. We also believe that neither for the campaign nor for the German-American Alliance is it of advantage if they and their branch associations take any kind of position in the campaign. The present election is not one in which the German-Americans can participate as Republicans or Democrats, but that does not preclude their forming a political party. Such would, aside from other thoughts, become rather an element of weakness than of power for German-Americanism."

"We have no reason to suppress the fact that we are for Hughes, and we have no cause to be silent about the reasons that make him for us an acceptable candidate, which reasons are to be found in the anti-neutrality and injustice of President Wilson. An agitation that would enlighten Americans as to these points would be all right, but to go beyond that would be bad."

"Practically all the German newspapers of the country are for Mr. Hughes. All the pro-German newspapers, like Hearst's New York American, the Evening Mail and the Chicago Tribune, are for him. All the professional German agitators are for him. The German propagandists are for him."

"Whatever Mr. Hughes may say, whatever Mr. Hughes may do, he is the German candidate for President of the United States. He may not welcome this professional German support, but without it he could not have been nominated and without it he cannot be elected. It may be unfortunate for him that he should be placed in such a position, but that is the fault of circumstances over which he has no control."

NAVY LEAGUE ON JOB TO WORK FOR BIG FLEET

Wants Democrats to Adopt Plank Providing for Second Large Sea Force.

Members of the Navy League, headed by Col. Robert M. Thompson of New York, president of the organization, began arriving in St. Louis today to urge the adoption of their plans for the restoration of the navy of the United States by the Democratic party in its convention.

Col. Thompson in an interview this morning with a Post-Dispatch reporter said his organization was not entirely satisfied with the plank adopted by the Republican convention in Chicago last week, although it appears stronger than that urged by them.

"We are urging that the navy be restored to its former position, that of the second in power of the world," he said. "The Republican convention adopted a navy plank which declared for fleets in the Atlantic and Pacific that would be strong enough to protect those coasts from invasion, and such a plan as carried out would make our navy the strongest of all the Powers. Beside that we are seeking assurance that our program will be carried out and the Republican plank lacks definiteness."

Night Around Britain

Col. Thompson hinted that the reason for opposing the plank of the Republicans arose in the Navy League from the fear that an effort to make ours the largest navy of the Powers would bring on or attack from the English. If they thought their sea power was threatened.

"Our program for restoring the navy to its former position would entail a cost, we estimate, of about $600,000,000," he said. "The building would require three years. This would make an annual expenditure of $200,000,000. When you consider that much money is spent annually by our people for candy and half as much for chewing gum, one can readily see the economic strain such a program would place on the nation would not be great."

The Navy Leaguers will appear before the Resolutions Committee of the convention, which will be headed by Senator Stone, with their appeal for the adoption of their plank.

The committee will be urged by Albert Bond Lambert, a member of the league and first vice president of the Aero Club of America, to make provision for the expenditure of $160,000,000 for the foundation of a naval flying corps. This will give the corps 500 aeroplanes, training and supply stations on both coasts, bases for the manufacture and repair of planes and a training school, Lambert says.

Will Teach Lessons.

Among the Navy Leaguers, who arrived here this morning was Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, retired, who received his appointment to the naval academy in 1885 from St. Louis, where his family then lived. He was born in Belleville, Ill.

Admiral Osterhaus said there will probably be a great lesson to the sea fighters of the United States in the recent naval engagement in the North Sea between English and German fleets when the actual facts of the battle become known to the intelligence department of the navy.

"So far we have not received authentic reports of the engagement," he said,
"and it is impossible to determine which branch was most effective in the fight.
Undoubtedly the battle will mean much to all the countries of the world when the true facts become known, as it will give a true line on the degrees of effectiveness of the various arms of the service, each equipped as they are with the most modern fighting machinery."

BASEBALL POOL LOTTERY RAID IN SHOE REPAIR SHOP

Copies of Slips, Rubber Stamps, Punches and List of Agents Found;
George Westerman Held.

The police gambling squad last night raided the headquarters of "Original Hippodrome" baseball pool lottery, said to be one of the largest enterprises of its kind in the city, in the shoe repairing shop of George Westerman, 483 Sigel avenue. Westerman, who admitted being the head of the concern, was arrested.

More than 5000 copies of pool slips, rubber stamps for printing and punches for indicating the combinations to be played were confiscated and held as evidence for the Circuit Attorney.

Westerman told detectives he was induced, last year, to enter partnership with another man in the baseball pool business. He and the partner disagreed, he said, and this season he undertook to head his own concern. The names of 100 agents were found in a card index in Westerman's shop.

WILSON ASKED TO NAME LEHMAN AS HUGHES' SUCCESSOR

Telegram Sent to President Signed by Prominent St. Louis Republicans and Democrats.

A number of St. Louis lawyers, in a telegram sent yesterday to President Wilson, urged the appointment of Frederick W. Lehman to the United States Supreme Court to succeed Charles E. Hughes.

Among the signers were former Supreme Court Judge Franklin Ferriss, Joseph H. Zumbahlen, John F. Lee, George R. Lockwood, Thomas S. McPheters, O'Neill Ryan, Edward C. Elliott, Moses N. Sale, Wilbur Jones, Robert A. Holland, Henry W. Allen and Sterling E. Edmunds. The signers belong to both the Republican and Democratic parties.

Although former President Taft has been suggested as one of the possibilities as a successor to Hughes, members of the St. Louis bar are not inclined to think the President will appoint a Republican in view of the court being equally divided with four Democratic and four Republican members.

Although Lehman served under President Taft as Solicitor-General of the United States, he is nevertheless considered a Democrat. Frequently, in the appointments to the Supreme Court in recent years, his name has been mentioned among those under consideration.

Lehman is a native of Prussia, but was educated in the United States. He came from Iowa to St. Louis in 1886, and has since practiced law here. He has been known as an independent Democrat, and refused to follow Bryan in 1896 on the silver issue. He was appointed Solicitor-General of the United States by President Taft in 1910 and served for two years. President Wilson appointed him one of the representatives of the United States in the mediation conference held at Niagara Falls, Ont., in the summer of 1914, between this Government and the de facto (Huerta) Government of Mexico, with diplomats from Argentina, Brazil and Chile as mediators.

YOU WANT TO KNOW TOO MUCH, WOUNDED MAN TELLS POLICE

"Snake Maloney" Found Shot in Chest and Arms—ByName Name His Assailant.

William Warren, known in police circles as "Snake Maloney," 24 years old and living at 2013 Franklin avenue, was found at Jefferson and Franklin avenues at 1:45 o'clock this morning suffering from bullet wounds in the right arm and left chest.

"You want to know too much," he told a policeman who inquired about his wounds. "It's no skin off your face, in it?"

Warren was bandaged at the central dispensary and then locked up at the Dayton Street Police Station pending investigation.

COMEDY PAIR RUN AWAY WITH PARK MUSICAL SHOW

Pretty Mrs. Smith Played to Feature Ray Crane and Sarah Edwards.

Ray Crane and Sarah Edwards performed a daring act of burglary last night. Before a large audience at the Park Theater they stepped right in and stole the show. The piece was "Pretty Mrs. Smith," a comedy with a satisfactory share of music and much fun, some of which is rather broad, not to say coarse. It revolves about Drucilla Smith, who married Frank Smith after her second husband, Forrest Smith, had ended his own life, and her first husband, the Rev. Ferdinand Smith, had been drowned at sea. It turns out that Forrest didn't drown, which leaves Drucilla with three healthy husbands and a lot of trouble on her hands.

Although Anne Bussert carried the title role well, Miss Edwards' hoydenish Letitia Proudfoot bid for highest favor, with Crane's hilarious part of Forrest, who carried about a 2-year-old jag, Bobby Jones, the eugenic hotel clerk.

KING AND QUEEN AT MEMORIAL TO EARL KITCHENER

Crowds Attend Cathedral and Two Other London Churches Where Service Is Held.

LONDON, June 12.—Great crowds lined the streets today in the vicinity of St. Paul's Cathedral and stood for hours in the rain, awaiting the arrival of King George, Queen Mary and Dowager Queen Alexandra for the memorial services for Field Marshal Earl Kitchener.

The doors of the cathedral opened shortly after 10 o'clock, and the vast building was rapidly filled. Thousands of applicants for admission were refused, and it was stated that a building in the times the size of St. Paul's would not hold the army officers who wished to attend the services.

It was announced that the services would be practically divested of any military ceremonial. No troops lined the streets through which the royal party passed and there was no guard of honor.

A feature of the service was the part taken by the band of the Royal Engineers and the drummers of the Irish Guard, of which corps Lord Kitchener was honorary Colonel. The "Dead March" was played by the band and the drummers and after the benediction the guardsmen sounded the "Last Post."

In addition to the services in St. Paul's the memory of the dead soldier was honored by a ceremony in Westminster Abbey while a third was held in Canterbury Cathedral.

The Times today prints a sonnet to Earl Kitchener, written by Dr. Robert Bridges, the British poet laureate. The sonnet follows:

"Unflinching hero, watchful to foresee And face the country's peril whereso'er,
Directing war and peace with equal care,
Till by long toil ennobled, thouwert
he Whom England called and bade, 'Set my arm free,
To obey my will and save my honor fain.'
What day the foe presumed on her despair
And she herself had trust in none but thee.
Among herculean deeds the miracle That mass'd the labor of 10 years in one.
Shall be thy monument. Thy work is done.
Ere we could thank thee, and the high sea swell,
Surgeon unheeding where thy proud ship fell,
By the lone Orkneys are the set of sun."

AL FRESCO OPERA HOUSE WILL BE READY FOR SHOW TONIGHT

Stage Up at Robison Field and Scenery Is Hung for First Act. Carpenters, electricians and scenic artists are at work at Robison Field, under the guidance of Edward Seidle, Technical Director, transforming it into an al fresco opera house for the song festival tonight when Metropolitan Opera stars will sing "Siegfried." The great stage is up and the scenery has been hung for the first act. The orchestra pit has been constructed and the sounding board placed.

The electric installation was completed yesterday afternoon and was tested last night and found entirely satisfactory.

The singers are here and all of them have been at the park to have a look at the stage and the other arrangements. The performance will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

FINAL "AS YOU LIKE IT" PERFORMANCE THIS EVENING

Pageant Drama Association Expects Crowd Tonight Will Prevent Financial Loss in Engagement. The last of eight performances of "As You Like It," under the auspices of the Pageant Drama Association, will be presented tonight at the natural amphitheater in Forest Park.

The performance last night and the one tonight were arranged because the performances of Monday and Tuesday nights last week were called off on account of rain.

With another audience such as crowded the amphitheater last night, the management is confident there will be no financial loss from the engagement.

Among the guests last night was Johannes Sembach, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, who, with Mrs. Sembach and a party of friends, occupied a box.

MISSOURI WINS RATE CASE

WASHINGTON, June 13.—In a decision handed down yesterday, the Supreme Court held the Burlington Railroad could not use as a defense the allegation of "confiscation" in the suit brought by Attorney-General Barker of Missouri for the State against the railroad in order to recover the difference between the two-cent-a-mile rate and the rate that the railroad charged pending the outcome of the original litigation over the two-cent law.

Attorney-General Barker in his arguments recently before the court contended that confiscation could not be used as a defense, since the court already had decided in a prior decision that the two-cent law was not confiscatory. The Supreme Court upheld the contentions of the State.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR C. A. MADILL, BOND BROKER

Son of Late Judge Had $35,000-a-Year Income—Died Suddenly of Cerebral Hemorrhage.

The funeral of Charles A. Madill, 45 years old, who died suddenly Saturday night, was held yesterday from the family residence, 440 Lindell boulevard. Madill was a son of the late Judge George Madill and was said to have had an income of about $35,000 a year, principally from his father's estate. He was in bond brokerage business with an office in the Rialto Building.

The family refused to make public the cause of death, but in the burial permit it was given as cerebro hemorrhage and acute alcoholism, with the hemorrhage the primary cause. Up to about two weeks before his death Madill had been a patient in St. John's Hospital. He was said to have been suffering from a nervous affection, but was discharged as cured. He became suddenly ill late Saturday night and died in a short time.

He is survived by a widow and two daughters, Delphine, 10 years old, and Talima, 14.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Roosevelt's Charge Against Wilson

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I for one, am not going to be misled by the mouthings and machinations of politicians on either side. We've got a good president and we ought to hang to him. I hold common sense and Americanism and good executive service above party and partisan fooleries. Wilson has for some months kept this country from mixing up in this blood-oozing European mess despite howl from sentimental sections of the masses and jeers of the Roosevelt sort. Right now the war issue is the issue and Wilson is on the job. That the fool people do not understand the fine curves of Wilson's diplomacy isn't Wilson's fault.

Who gives a hang, for instance, whether poor old dead-in-his-grave Huerta shot at the flag or not, so long as Uncle Sam still stands the only level-headed, non-participant in all the senseless fighting now going on in the world.

Let me repeat: I'm for Wilson clean across the board. I liken him to Lincoln at that time in the Great Emancipator's career when he stood steadfast surrounded by hordes of detractors.

I am a deep, dyed-in-the-wool Republican and always vote the party issues. But there comes a time when The Issue can be bigger than the foolies that go to make up either party.

The old colonial crowd back in 1776 gave me the right to vote as I pleased. Stick around 'till next November and watch me cast my ballot for Wilson.

MR. COMMON SENSE.

No Justice for Women.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I am ashamed of my beloved Missouri's Chicago opposition to women. She lines up with the tedious old moseyback states of the East. Are we never to get out of the rut?

MISSOURI DEMOCRAT.

Woman Suffrage Must Win.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Your editorial "The Voice of Golden Lane," strikes the nail on the head and should make the anti-suffragists stop and think. Every thinking person realizes now that woman's suffrage will eventually come in all popular governments. To oppose it is futile, hopelessly reactionary, a waste of time.

The thinking woman should wake up and awake other women to this new responsibility. She should read and learn, that when the time comes for her to register an opinion at the polls, it may be a carefully formed opinion. Yes, she should ask her husband's, her father's, her brother's opinion, but she should study to ascertain whether his stand is the right one and ask him to study with her. She should learn to grasp ideas, to weigh arguments. Let her not be a mere shiftless, shambling character, drifting with the tide.

ONE-TIME "ANTY."

Mosby, a Southern Product.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Let me thank you in the name of all the Daughters of the Confederacy for your editorial headed, "Mosby, Aviator of the Saddle." It is as true of Southern men today as it was from '61 to '65.

Park Problems.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Will you kindly inform me through your columns why the Park Commissioner reconstructs and rebuilds driveways in Forest Park and when they are from three-quarters to seven-eighths per cent completed, abandons them and leaves them in unfinished condition for months? One I have in mind on West Art Hill, which has been abandoned and unusable for at least a year.

Also why does the Park Commissioner permit automobiles to drive east on the north drive and west on the south drive in Tower Grove Park? This habit is dangerous on account of the curves in the road, permitting only a short view ahead.

AN OBSERVANT BOOSTER.

Virility.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
A certain popular magazine is dead set for preparedness. It calls people who oppose it fools. Further it says: "If England and France had been prepared the Germans, before this, would have been completely crushed." It is a mighty big word. No sane man would say that a drunken man should arm himself, that would be foolishness. And every nation is drunk with egotism—led on by a lot of bell-wether Roosevelts and emotional women. As for war making men—bringing forth virility. Ye Gods and little fishes!

SIDNEY AVERILL.

BAKER FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

Henry Morgenthau's suggestion of Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, for the Democratic vice presidential nomination ought not to be thrown under the steam roller without serious consideration.

Mr. Baker's nomination would give strength to the Democratic ticket. He is a young, able, growing man. He represents the progressive element of the Democracy. He has an exceptionally good record as Mayor of Cleveland. He comes from Ohio, which is good fighting ground, and far enough west to satisfy the Western demand for representation.

ST. LOUIS WEATHER.

We "point with pride" to St. Louis weather. The skies are bright and the air is cool and bracing, but softened with a touch of summer warmth.

Comparisons are odious. Therefore, we say nothing of Chicago's convention weather; the less said about it the better. We venture to say that the newspaper men who went to the Grant Farm and the Sunset Hill Country Club will testify that the country was beautiful and the day delicious. All we ask is that they testify aloud, so that the whole country can hear and correct whatever false impressions may hitherto have been given concerning St. Louis as a summer resort.

WHAT IS AND WHAT MIGHT BE.

The Columbus Journal states the case more concisely than the Republican platform or even Justice Hughes' brief recapitulation of views:

Of course the electorate is composed of farsighted men and all that, still we think it would be rather hard to carry an election on the paramount issue of how badly the country would be off if it weren't so prosperous.

Mr. Hughes speaks of "this critical period of our national history." Wherein it is critical except in the possibility that a formula of demonstrated success already in administration may be replaced by something less promising?

The Republicans' practice of justifying their own methods by results is of long standing. Having claimed even the crops in good years as a party asset they now deny achievements by opponents in which the unmistakable agency of cause to effect is clearly perceived by the people.

Fighting against instead of with the full dinner pail, what has the G. O. P. to take the place of its former powerful ally?

The fair will vote for the party showing them most fairness.

WHEN THE COUNTRY ISN'T HEROIC.

"Don't take me unless the country is heroic," said the Colonel. The country was not "heroic" in the Colonel's sense and it did not take him. Whereupon the Colonel simulated the hermit life, locked the gates of Oyster Bay, refused to receive the press and declared himself "out of politics."

He has been out of politics for a long time, but he did not know it. The high principles for which he pretended to contend at Armageddon lose importance when they fail to give him more office holding. Whatever it was that others fought for while the band played "Onward Christian Soldier," he fought for nothing as determinedly as himself.

Thus a United States Senator, the chairman of the committee which is to enunciate the high principles of the Democratic party, can find no nobler arguments for the people's support of that party than to ridicule the personal appearance of a man but yesterday a Justice of the Supreme Court, and today the candidate of an historic party for the presidency of the United States.

Mr. Stone should, if possible, feel ashamed of himself.

CAN THE COLONEL SUCCEED IN HIS NEW ROLE OF OCTOBER.

The spirit of self-sacrifice marked in the leaders of other great popular movements seems sadly lacking. It may be recalled that devotion to the reforms he undertook in the past never did involve any martyrdoms for the Colonel—not long, arduous struggle to success. Some of them seemed to be taken up less for their own sake than to perpetuate him in position already won by other means.

As soon as it appears definitely that there is nothing more in it for the Colonel, he leaves the Armageddon comrades in arms to their fate.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR VISITORS.

If our thousands of visitors are interested in St. Louis, as they must be, they will welcome the opportunity to leave behind them a token, however small, of their regard for the city and its people. Such an opportunity is afforded by the daily appeals being made in behalf of the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, for the saving of the lives of St. Louis babies whose parents are too poor to buy certified milk and the ice necessary to keep it fresh for the babies.

This is the twelfth year of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. Each year since the fund was opened, the charitable people of St. Louis have contributed, directly or indirectly, from $2000 to nearly $5000 for the fund. And each year the fund has been aided by the willing efforts of St. Louis young people who are members of the Pure Milk and Free Ice League. A great many babies' lives have been saved by the fund, as the decreasing death rate among the city's infants proves.

The work of raising this fund would be very much facilitated if visitors who wish well to St. Louis and sympathize with her helpless little ones would contribute of their means.

We approve the principle with the qualification that the help ought to be given, voluntarily, and not taken, willy nilly. The trouble with much of the social propaganda of the past has been that the help was demanded of the other fellow by people who were unable themselves to help. They sought to help themselves to what belonged to others. Mutuality is the essence of a working scheme of social helpfulness.

ONE WEEK UNDER BRUSILOFF.

Is Gen. Brusiloff, who has smashed the line of the central Powers in the East, the leader of pre-eminence capacity for whom the allies have been waiting for 22 months?

He happens to be the one who directs a movement to which all Russia has made contributions at heavy sacrifice. But the same thing is true of several German Generals who have won distinction in this war. It was true of Gen. Grant in our war.

Without the tremendous national effort of many months past for organization, training, accumulation of munitions and expert study of the military problem, Gen. Brusiloff could not have done what he did. But what other General could have done it with them?

It is said that conditions were exceptionally favorable to his attack, for it was begun on June 4, a Sunday which the officers of the central Powers had devoted to two joyful celebrations of the German naval "victory" in the North Sea. Any advantage due to this reason must, however, have been only local and temporary, whereas Gen. Brusiloff has been victorious on a line almost as long as from St. Louis to Chicago, has penetrated the German front to a depth of 60 miles in places, has been averaging in capture of prisoners from 13,000 to 15,000 a day and for good measure captured 35,000 on the seventh day.

His first week of work shows a great area of territory recovered and a total of 140,000 prisoners taken.

What other allied General has accomplished so much in a single week since the battle of the Marne? This new advance into Galicia is, of course, made under vastly different circumstances from the former Russian advance, when the enemy was much less powerfully organized on the front.

It was not expected that Russia would find the man to show the allies how to break the strongly fortified German lines, but Russia has discovered him. The man who showed us how to crush the Confederacy was found in an obscure retired subaltern in the then remote West, after the sophisticated East and the leaders of high rank had failed.

The Franco-Belgian front, the Italian front, the Saloniki front all need a Brusiloff.

THE TAFT SUGGESTION.

The New York Times makes an excellent point in favor of the appointment of former President Taft to the Federal Supreme bench in place of Hughes, when it says that President Wilson could not more effectively express the idea that the Supreme Court is and always must be, out of politics. In ignoring partisanship in his appointment, the President would offset in his own behalf the act of the Republican party in taking a candidate from the bench and thus putting the court into politics.

But there are other reasons why the appointment would be excellent. Mr. Taft has a fine judicial record. He has a broad, fair mind. He thrust aside partisanship to defend President Wilson from unjust criticism and attack. His appointment following the appointment of Brandeis would gratify a great body of Americans who admire Mr. Taft and regard him as a great, sound lawyer and Judge.

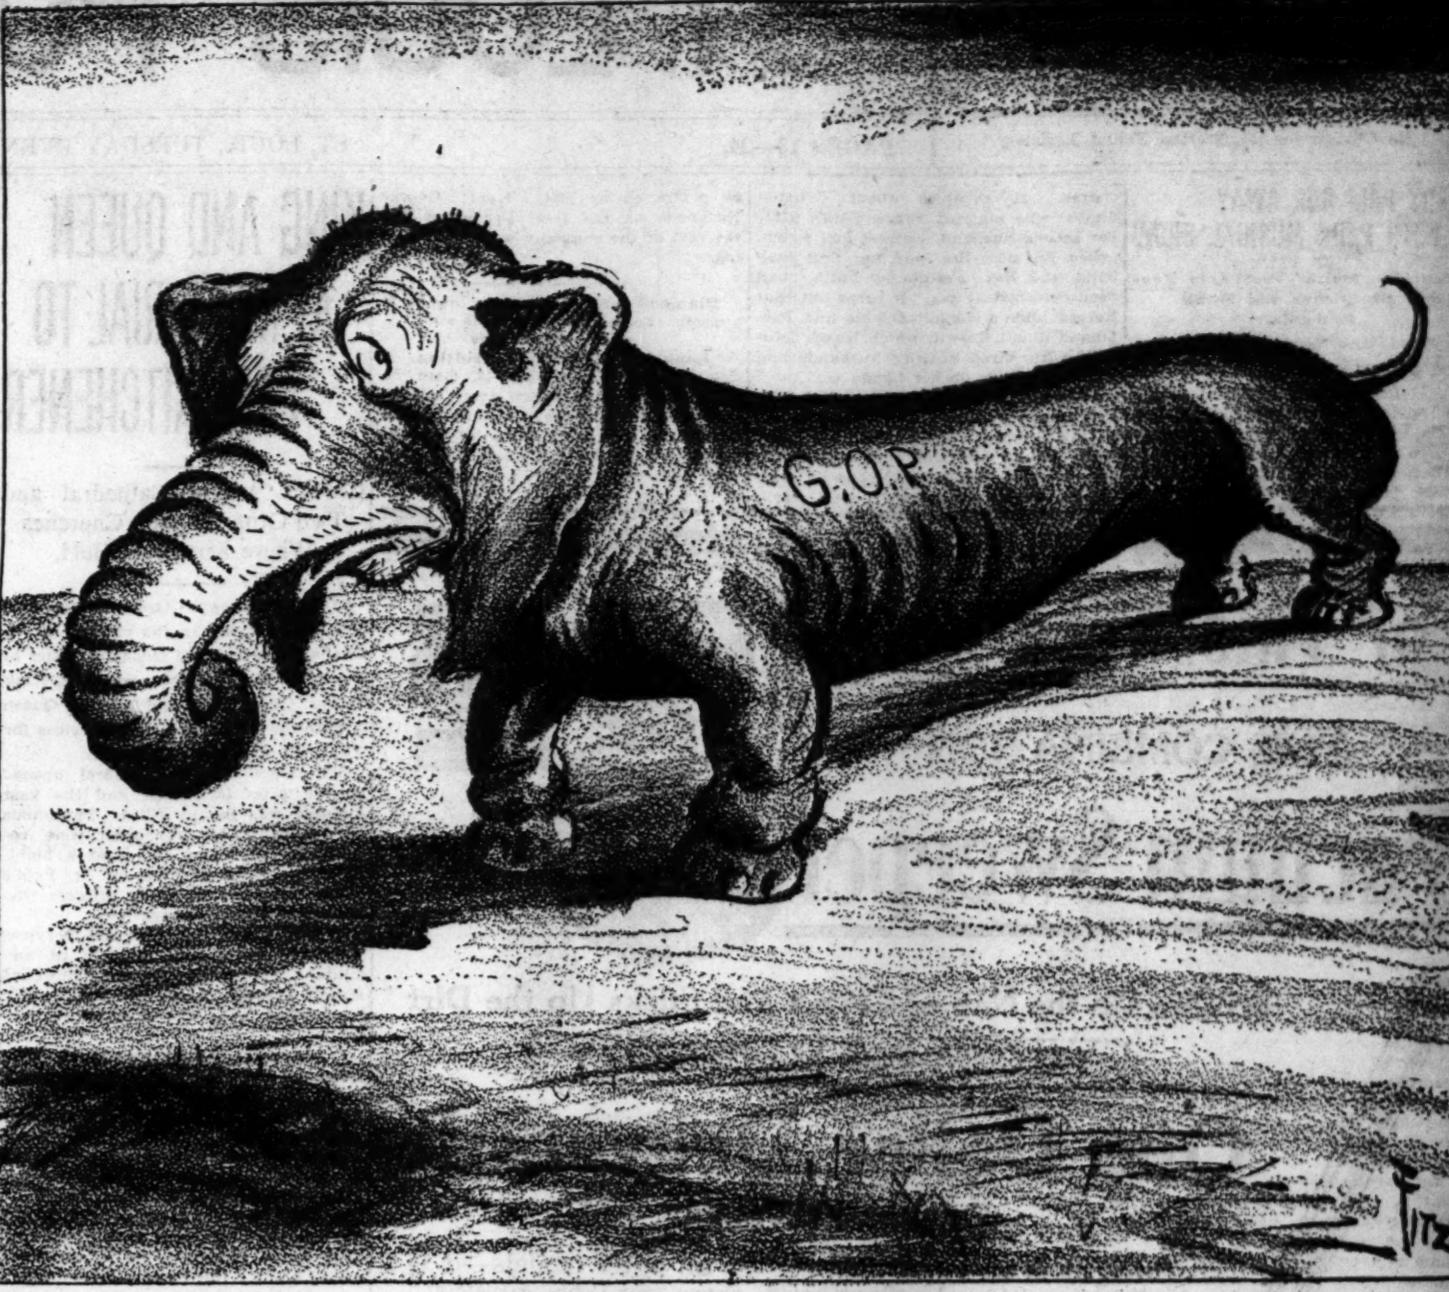

The appointment would be good politics, because it would be high, broad politics, ignoring partisan politics.

ST. LOUIS GUTTER-TALK.

Men of decency and intelligence of both parties have been congratulating themselves that with two such candidates for the presidency as Woodrow Wilson and Charles E. Hughes and with Theodore Roosevelt eliminated, we could get back to a campaign of principles instead of personalities, of intellect instead of insults, and could give our attention to the arguments of statesmen instead of to the refuse-slinging of gutter-snipes. Now promptly Senator Stone strikes the keynote of decency and refinement by attacking Mr. Hughes as "So reserved and exclusive as to leave the impression that he emanated from the North Pole and his whiskers not by any means dissolved."

The appointment would be good politics, because it would be high, broad politics, ignoring partisan politics.

WHEN FRIENDS COME.
LIFE parts the coldness of our hearts and lends

Warmth lasting aid sincere to take its place,

When a friend comes and slips patriotic hands
Into our hot ones, lean with toil; whose face
Is All-American; whose soul is bound

In harmony with eyes, glist'ning with truth,
Where enterprise—Love's secrets lately found,
As fair in understanding simpleness

As the first glances of a Sweetheart's eyes,
Stealing, side-way, treasures of her soul

For us from her deep wells of holiness.

Worlds move within the hollows of clean hands;

From fairy touches Love and Honor leap

Thru homestead hearts, and kindness upkeeps

The firm old gallantry so true and deep;

The peasant toils, yet has a face of smiles

And tenderness which speak a restful heart—

While the mechanics, with their skilled power,

Rise to occasion and fulfill their part.

When friend to friend, in the old honor's way,
Has spend a day, with an American—

Why he has found a heart in welcome is Wide open for the tenantry of man!

THE NEWS FROM SCIOURSBURG.

Dear Sir:—When I read you last I told you we was going to have a fire here. We had it and it was some site two. Then 100 fellers got in the arena at eggcrates 7x sharp and I wish I could give you all the site by rounds, but their wasn't but one. They got mad at too others rite after they started and the empire (the Proprietary) had to condense. They got mad at too others rite to come and get a drink and when we came back a few later they was still at it. Of course we lost and I don't think it was fair either, as Lasso Bill had to quit count he sed he wouldn't site any one that perched in hitting him in the nose and all the time, and the Bosting Terrier had a led waste in his glove. In the pictur I am sending you, you will notice a small animal with foliage on its pugnacity, that person is the master of the Bosting Terrier, also the little girl who has him in his pocket. He sure carried away many a hard earned Simoleon from hear and do you no he never set-em-up but once.

Geo. Whizaker the Boise are sore—I hardly think we will have any more sites for some time unless it is among our selves so we can keep the arena at Sciourusville. The big site pugnacity is the Red Dog toofer, their aint any Kamis in this Buz I tell you. I am coming to the Den. A reader of Just a Minute at Highland, Ill., rises to speak to the question we have raised with respect to sign painters being attended by proofreaders. He says it should be done, but that we must extend the same courtesy to comic artists, one of whom spoke of "cithing" just the other day. He doesn't want any deserving craft slighted. We accept the amendment, though we doubt whether one proofreader to one comic artist could do the work. It was not an omission on our part, as this Highlander is afraid. We were only trying to make the supply of proofreaders go around.

A correspondent who is as dumb as Hughes as to his own identity wants to know if there is anything alarming in his discovery that one of our advertisers is selling "$3 woman's Satan Pumps for $1.45." We think not. You can't buy anything wicked for $1.45.

Prim Cyrilla

The story of a man and girl in love, each of whom thought the other too dignified for wholesome enjoyment.

By H. M. Egbert.

CYRILLA was the dearest girl in the world, but a little cold-hearted. Freddy Broughton could not disguise that fact from his knowledge. But he had weighed it against her virtues when he asked her to be his wife, and did not weigh a great deal.

Cyrilla Burns and Freddy had known each other since they were tots. Their families lived in one of those old-fashioned city squares that are rapidly disappearing before the march of progress. Only a few of the old families remained in the vicinity, and they formed a sort of aristocracy of birth, though few of them had any money.

Freddy's father was a lawyer, and sat all day in an old-fashioned office and met old-fashioned clients there. Cyrilla's father was a rector, who sipped his glass of wine every lunch time, wore a very stiff cravat, and preached in a stately church so empty that he might have begun his service "dearly beloved Sister Jones" instead of "dearly beloved brethren."

It had always been understood that Freddy and Cyrilla were to marry. When Freddy came home from college he looked at Cyrilla and wondered. Here he had been out in the world, as it seemed to him, tasting the joys of emancipation, and Cyrilla was still the same old round of missionary meetings, library committees and visits among a select and exclusive old-fashioned set.

Yet Freddy was shrewd enough to see that a wife must be chosen for her wearing qualities. And Cyrilla undoubtedly did wear well. She was just the same as ever, just as interested in him, just as willing to talk about her interests, even a little fonder, Freddy thought.

So it came about at the annual dinner party that, finding himself alone with Cyrilla, Freddy took her hand in his.

"Will you marry me soon, Cyrilla dear?" he asked.

"Yes," answered Cyrilla. "If you are sure you love me."

"I know I love you," answered Freddy. "I love you well enough to look forward to taking you into the world, where we shall live our own life—a different life!"

Freddy Takes a Vacation.

Hopped abruptly. It would never do to let Cyrilla realize that he had other views of their future than living on in the Square. And if a little gleam came into Cyrilla's eyes Freddy did not notice it.

They were to be married in early autumn. That summer Cyrilla arrived in an unprecedented manner, she accepted an invitation from a friend to spend a week up-country. It was so unusual that there was much shaking of heads and consultation among the family. However, in the end it was decided that as an almost married woman Cyrilla might be permitted to go. Cyrilla, who had meant to go anyway, went.

Left to himself, Freddy pined in his father's law office. When his vacation arrived he decided not to take one. He was moping. Somehow Cyrilla's letters seemed awfully cold. Did Cyrilla love him well enough to become his wife? That was the question he put to himself.

"No" was the answer that his inner consciousness thundered out one afternoon. "No! And I am going to offer her her freedom. And I am going to break away!"

And in that moment he saw himself a martyr and pictured the joys of life under new skies, and totally different auspices.

He told his father that he would take his vacation after all. He went to the Catskills and selected a little hotel there. And there he plunged, with a sense of awful wickedness, into a new life.

In every forest glade one came upon spooning couples. On every lake rang out the voices of hilarious young people. Freddy flung himself into it all with zest. He made desperate love to a little girl who sold perfume in town, and had apparently abstracted a good deal of the stock to pour over herself. He spent the mornings with her, the afternoons and evenings with other girls as light-headed.

He felt he was a regular Romeo, and when the hotel gave the annual masked ball Freddy was the gayest of the gay. Freddy's Partner Faints.

FREDDY spun in the giddy mazes of dance after dance. The crowd was having a glorious time when someone cut the electric light wire. Instantly terrific confusion ensued. Freddy, embracing an unknown creature, who had fainted, dead weight upon his shoulder, fell a resounding faint.

The girl had really fainted. Freddy carried her, but when he reached the entrance he felt a sudden disgust for the crowd. He picked her up bodily in his arms, and made toward the lake, some fifty paces distant. The moon had not risen, it was almost pitch dark.

He tried to arouse her and decided that the proper thing to do would be to dash water into her face.

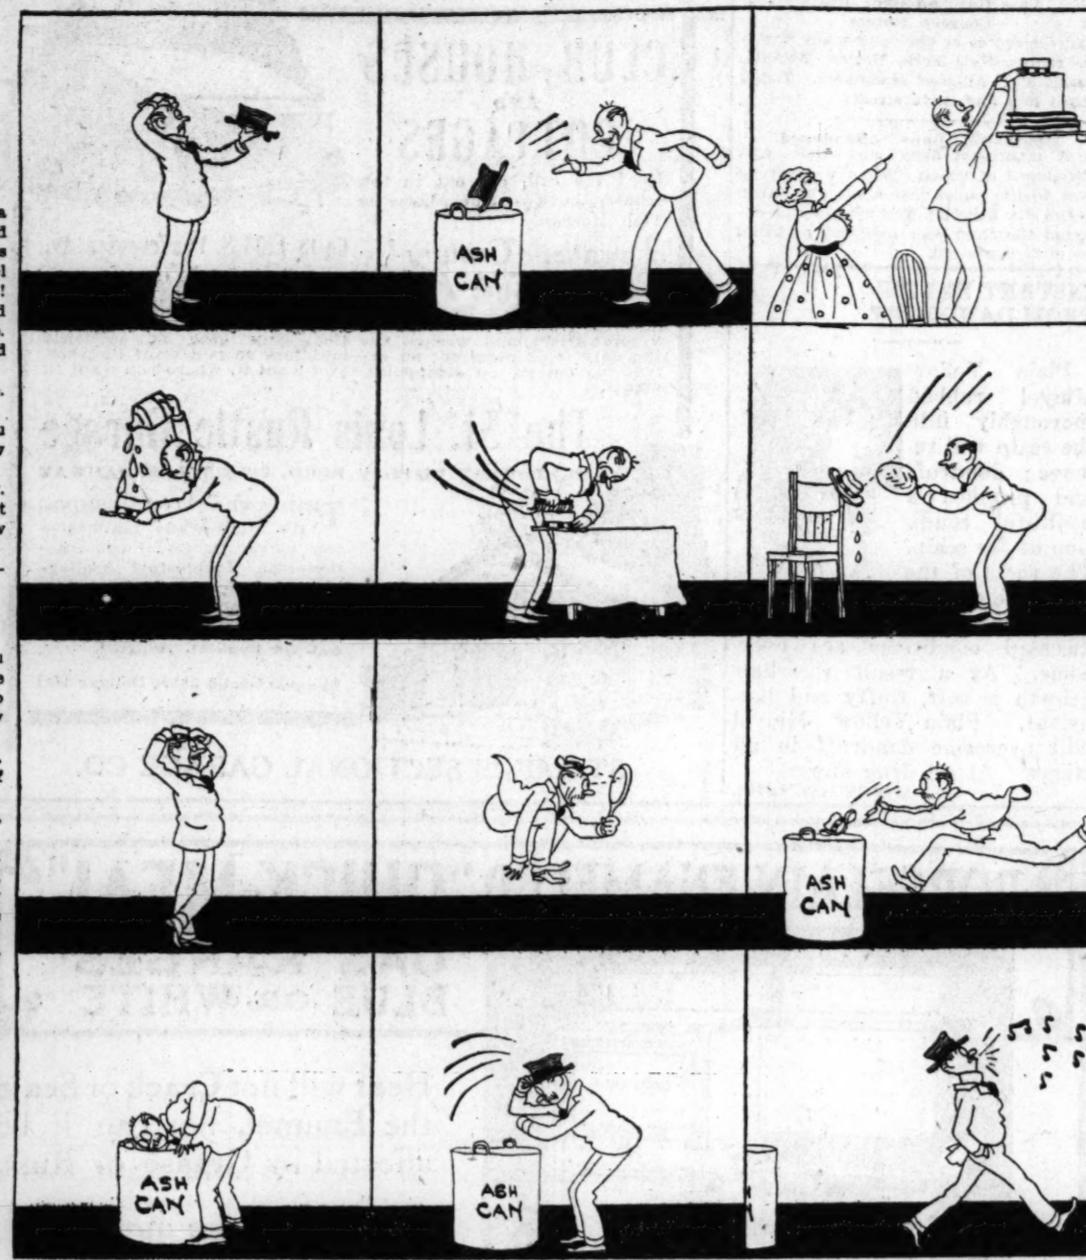

When he returned from the lake, he knelt down beside the girl, raised her head on his arm and dashed the water into her face.

She sighed, and suddenly opened her eyes. At least, Freddy imagined so, for he could see only the black shadow of the mask. He removed it from her face.

"Where am I?" she whispered in terror. "It's all right, miss," said Freddy. "Somebody cut the wire and you fainted. We'll have you back in a jiffy."

The girl was quite silent. Suddenly Freddy bent forward and planted a kiss upon the girl's lips.

When Beauty Lost.

ONCE upon a time there were two young women. They were very good friends. One of the girls was very pretty while the other was rather plain. These girls had mutual friends and would go to visit them together. Always the attractive girl was the center of all admiration; while her friend remained in the rear, having been so accustomed to take that place that she was rather "backward."

However, always, after a few days, when people were better acquainted with her, they found that there was something sweet and winsome about her.

The pretty girl had many admirers and finally she chose one among them all and decided to have him until "death did them part." He was the "catch of the season" and thoroughly worth while. The engagement was announced and all was joyful. No one was more glad for her happiness than the plain friend.

A few months afterward at one of these pleasant house parties which both girls attended there was a man who had just returned from foreign lands where he had done big things that meant much in the world's work. He was at once the center of the group, the idol of the hour. Yet he was a quiet man, busy with big thoughts, and had not much time for gaiety. He met the plain girl and often sat with her while the others were making mirth. Soon he sought her society more than that of the others. At last he saw the beautiful soul in her and wanted to be always at her side. To make a long fable short, he told her all about it and she felt just as he did. They also quietly became engaged. In great glee she told the secret to her pretty friend, since they had been chums so long.

The pretty one was astonished to think that although she had captured a real prize, here was the plain girl actually making the very best match of the season—winning the much-talked-of man.

Everybody would envy the plain girl, she thought. She became unhappy over it; for this man had seemingly not shown any preference for her whatever. Her so-called pride being piqued, she decided on a course. She managed always to be with the plain girl, when the plain girl's fiance was about. She used all her attractions to win him away.

Her fiance saw the drift of things. Finally, in a heated quarrel, she broke off her own engagement, and now bent her every energy to win the other man. Pretty soon the truth dawned on the plain girl; and she feared she was standing in the way again; that she was too plain to expect a big man like this to love her. So she wrote him a note and, without explanation, said that she wanted to be free.

The man was astounded. He came to the pretty girl and told her of his misery, and begged if she knew the cause of her chum's action. That was her chance. She tried to soothe him by talking sweetly to him and using all the artifices that woman is heiress to.

But to no purpose. For a little while he listened, but his heart yearned for the other. At last he went to her boldly and squarely as he had always done in everything, and demanded the reason. She told him the truth. He saw it all. The man was adjusted and "they lived happily ever afterwards."

THE PRETTY GIRL LEARNED THIS MORAL: WHEN WOMAN, NO MATTER HOW ATTRACTIVE, STOPS TO CONQUER, SHE USUALLY FALLS DOWN.

Cooking Suggestions.

PARSLEY a small Hubbard squash. Remove the stem end like a cover and take out the seeds. Then scoop out part of the pulp and mix with a rich stuffing of chopped ham and veal and bread crumbs, seasoned with salt and pepper and moistened with milk. Heat stuffing, then fill squash shell. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake.

In mixing waffles, muffins or any variety of quick breakfast bread which calls for melted butter, olive oil will serve even to better purpose for the reason that oil is a little richer than butter. A slightly smaller quantity can be used. The result will be batter of unusual smoothness, while the flavor of the oil is not perceptible. Olive oil can be used with excellent results in making such cakes as spiced ginger bread.

War Medal Prices.

ONE somehow thinks of war medals as priceless, treasured always, either by the gallant recipient or by his descendants, as the most precious of heirlooms. Yet in a recent book, "War Medals and Their History," by W. A. Steward, a chapter is devoted to "Sale Prices" of these tributes to heroism. Auction prices of Waterloo medals vary from $7.50 to $100; a gold medal of the Peninsula war is $150, while a silver medal won at Serinapatanam realized only $8; Trafalgar medals vary from $7.50 to $225; Victoria crosses are high—from $215 to $850.

Typhoid in Infected Milk.

SIXTY-SIX out of 87 cases of typhoid fever which occurred in a recent outbreak have been traced by the United States Public Health Service to infected milk. Had the first cases been reported to a trained health officer the outbreak could have been stamped out promptly.

The First Mercantile Agency

THE first mercantile agency in America was established in 1837 by Lewis and Arthur Tappan. Arthur Tappan began his business career in Montreal, where he remained until the war of 1812. Besides helping to establish the pioneer mercantile agency, he was one of the founders of the American Tract Society and of Oberlin College, endowed Lane Theological Society, and was the first president of the American Anti-Slavery Society, to which he contributed $1000 a month for several years.

The Tappans were the first to conceive the practicability of gathering funds for the establishment of commercial credits, and their idea has been developed into one of the cornerstones which has credit for its foundation.

The law in Switzerland protecting rare plants is so strict that to be found in possession of specimens illegitimately collected is a penal offense.

The American tomato crop is worth $14,000,000 a year.

"THE tonic effect of Sanatogen on me is simply wonderful."

—Arnold Bennett

The famous novelist thus sums up his experience with Sanatogen, the food- tonic for weak and overworked people. What he says is echoed by thousands upon thousands of other grateful users of Sanatogen who also have experienced with a thrill of delight its revitalizing effects upon body and mind. Shrewd and discriminating people, like Mr. Arnold Bennett, have learned to depend upon Sanatogen for recuperative aid. They know that Sanatogen is a natural, true tonic whose good effects keep on increasing—instead of reacting as with stimulants—until the body is endowed with so great a fund of added strength and resistive force that working power and efficiency are wonderfully improved.

Says Mme. Sara Grand, the famous authoress, in stating her experience with Sanatogen: "And now after taking it steadily, I find myself able to enjoy both work and play again, and able to do as much of both as I ever did."

And when it is remembered that the medical profession is daily recommending Sanatogen, that no less than 21,000 physicians have endorsed, in writing, its value and effects, surely no doubt can exist that Sanatogen is the logical thing for you to take in times of bodily nervous stress.

Are you sure you do not need it now?

The Glory of Motherhood

Yours is the privilege to watch and cherish your baby's life by patient, tireless devotion hour by hour—and day by day. Yours is the wonderful reward that comes when that little life flourishes.

Above all, yours is the duty to see that his food is right, for the food matters more than all else.

Nurse your baby—of course. If you can't wean him on

Nestlé's Food
(A Complete Food—Not a Milk Modifier)

He will not feel the change, because Nestlé's is so like mother's milk.

Don't try to wean your baby on raw cow's milk. The change from mother's milk to raw cow's milk is too great for the tiny stomach. Cow's milk is meant for calves, not babies. It is too watery, too acid, too curd. More sickness, diphtheria, scarlet fever and above all—summer complaint is caused in cows' milk than in any other way.

Keep your baby safe. Bring him through the delicate time to strong, healthy manhood with the help of Nestlé's Food.

In Nestlé's you get the best cow's milk, from sanitary dairies, purified and modified so that it suits your baby.

Chapters From a Bride's Life-Story.

Edited by Janet Trevor.

Chapter X.

JULY 17—I have been so busy for the last two or three days that I haven't had time to write anything. Now I have been settling ourselves in New York. After his narrow escape from drowning neither of us felt like having any longer on the Maine coast. So we decided to return at once to the little apartment which he had rented and partly furnished before we went away.

I wonder why it is that the man who is so certain home is the best place for a woman inevitably shies at the notion of spending most of his time there.

Perhaps it was unreasonable for me to assume that Ned would have his office in our apartment. But he agreed to this arrangement when we talked about it before we were married.

Since he is a doctor, I realized that the hours and times which other women spend with their husbands as a matter of course would, in my case, be disturbed. I think Ned's work of saving lives is wonderful, however, and I should never dream of taking him away from a mother who needed him for her sick child, to amuse or help him. But when my friends and even my mother warned me of the long, lonely evenings a doctor's wife must spend, the engagements she must break—or keep, bearing her husband's excuse.

"You don't know what you're talking about, Ned!" I exclaimed impatiently. "Miss Duryea has been with me for several years, and I certainly am not going to discharge her. I'm not so poor that I've got to work for a living."

"I'm sorry, Ned," he said with a smile. "I do believe Fluffy is following us up the river," said Ned as they turned the corner. "I can see a brown speck coming in this direction."

Ned half an hour the boys landed on the island and commenced to eat their lunch. When that was finished they proposed to swim to the bank opposite the side from which they had started. Ned did not know how to swim, so he sat on a rock to watch the others. After the boys had gotten to the other side Ned and the dog swam across the river toward Ned. It was a hard fight, but he made it.

"You can't go, old boy!" shouted Ned. "You would upset the canoe." "I do believe Fluffy is following us up the river," said Ned as they turned the corner. "I can see a brown speck coming in this direction."

"Ned, I am going to take a swim," said Ned. "I'll ask her to come to tea. (To be Continued.)

SUPREME COURT DENIES REHEARING IN MILL TAX SUIT

Decision Ending Case Was One of the Last Written by Justice Hughes.

The United Railways Co.'s motion for a rehearing on the mill tax case was denied by the United States Supreme Court yesterday. The case was decided against the company April 19 last. Attorney H. S. Priest in his motion for a rehearing alleged that the "substantial defenses" of the United Railways Co. had not been passed on by the court.

In its decision written by former Justice Hughes, now Republican candidate for President, there is no comment except that there was not sufficient evidence offered to justify a rehearing. The motion followed an attempt by Priest to obtain a rehearing in the Missouri Supreme Court.

City Counselor Daves last night was notified by the United States Supreme Court that its mandate would be forwarded to the Missouri Supreme Court at once.

Daves said the decision marks the end of the 10-year litigation. He expects that the Missouri Supreme Court will promptly instruct the Circuit Court to issue an execution for the collection of the $2,300,000 mill tax which the United Railways Co. owes the city and he believes the money will be collected within 30 days. This money is held in trust by two St. Louis trust companies subject to a judgment order.

The decision assures the collection of the mill tax which accrued from the passage of the ordinance up to 1910. Since then additional suits have been filed by the city. The total amount of mill tax now due is more than $3,000,000.

SOCIETY

THE open air performance of "Siegfried" at Robison Field this evening is the event of greatest importance in the day's calendar. The novelty of grand opera al fresco will bring out a large audience, and although the exigencies of the occasion forbid brilliancy in the way of costumes, the assemblage will be none the less a gay one.

Many of the visiting notables who are in St. Louis for the Democratic convention will be guests in the various box parties, and others who have not come for the convention also will be present. Among the latter is Joseph Linden Smith of Boston, who will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Simmon. Mr. and Mrs. Simmon's other guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Langensberg and Miss Mary Wright. Mr. and Mrs. Melville L. Wilkinson will have a party of young people, friends of their daughter, Miss Juanita Wilkinson, and Mrs. Newton R. Wilson's guests will be Mrs. N. Bruce Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Jones, Mr. and William G. Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Nugent will have Delegate George Michelson of Arizona as their principal guest, with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Casey of Mount Vernon, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Kennard completing their party.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McClure Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Peyton T. Carr and Mr. and Mrs. Robert McKittrick Jones also will occupy boxes.

Miss Katherine Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Parker of 39 Washington terrace, has gone to West Point, N. Y., to attend the Senior "Prom" at the United States Military Academy tonight. Miss Parker has been visiting friends in Hartford, Conn., since being graduated at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and will go from West Point to New Haven to attend the Yale "Prom" next Monday.

Mrs. Richard McCullock and her children of 4322 Westminster place have gone to their summer home at Oconomowoc, Wis., to remain until October.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Nims of 17 Lenox place have as their guests for the week Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gouch of Dallas, Tex. Mr. Gouch is in St. Louis to attend the Democratic convention.

Mrs. Samuel M. Green will give a flag day tea at her home, 8815 Madison, tomorrow in honor of the out-of-town members of the National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution, who have come to St. Louis for the National Democratic Convention.

Mrs. M. A. Carman and her daughter, Mrs. Adele Carman Newcomb of the Buckingham Hotel, will dinner tomorrow for Colorado Springs, Colo., where they will take a cottage for the summer. They expect to make a tour of Glacier Park in the later part of June.

Mrs. Rachel Sahn of 882 Maple avenue has issued cards for the marriage of her daughter, Miss Marie Sahn, and Charles C. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville L. Brown of 884 Clemens avenue, which will take place at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Max Stern, 812 Raymond avenue, Saturday evening, June 24.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Marx and their son, Edmund Marx Jr., of 8201 Westminster place will be at home informally Thursday evening.

Jess Willard Says: "Take Nuxated Iron"

If You Want Plenty of 'Stay There' Strength and Endurance and Health and Muscles Like Mine."

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Often Increase the Strength and Endurance of the Delicate, Nervous Folks 200 Per Cent in Two Weeks' Time.

SPECIAL NOTE.—Dr. E. Sauer, a well-known physician who has studied widely in both this country and Europe, has been specially employed to make a thorough investigation into the effects of the great strength, power and endurance of Jess Willard, and the marvelous value of nuxated iron as a strength-builder.

NEW YORK—Upon being interviewed at his apartment in the Colonial Hotel, Mr. Willard said: "Yes, I have a champion with me to study the value of different foods and products as to their power to produce great strength and endurance, both of which are so necessary in the prize ring. On his recommendation I have often taken nuxated iron and I have particularly advocated the frequent use of iron by all those who wish to obtain great strength and mental power. Without it I am sure that I should never have been able to whip Jack Johnson so completely and easily as I did, and while training for my bout with Frank Moran I regularly took nuxated iron, and I am certain that it was a most important factor in my victory," said Mr. Willard.

Mr. Samuel M. Green will give a flag day tea at her home, 8815 Madison, tomorrow in honor of the out-of-town members of the National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution, who have come to St. Louis for the National Democratic Convention.

HOW TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT

A SIMPLE, SAFE, RELIABLE WAY

People who are over-burdened with superfluous fat know only too well the discomfort and ridicule that over-weight people have to bear.

If you are carrying around five or ten pounds of superfluous fat you are unnecessarily weakening your vital organs and are carrying a burden which destroys the beauty of your figure.

There is no need of anyone suffering from superfluous fat. If you will give up the superfluous fat you will be in shape, safe and ready to work without starvation diet or tiresome exercise. Here is a test worth trying: Spend as much time as you can in the sun, breathing deeply and get from Wolf-Wilson Drug Co. or any good druggist after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Walk at least once a week so as to know just how fast you are losing weight and don't eat less than you are even taking a single dose until you are down to normal.

Oil bath, which is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, and helps digestion. Even a day's noticeable reduction in weight becomes lighter, your work becomes easier and you feel a buoyant feeling takes possession of your whole person.

Every person who suffers from superfluous fat should give this treatment a trial.—ADV.

ECZEMA ON BABY'S HEAD AND FACE

Started With Little Pimples. Spread All Over Her Face, Head and Neck and Got Real Sure.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little daughter had a bad case of eczema on her head and face when she was five months old. I took it with just a few little pimples, and it started from her head and spread all over her face, head and neck. Then it got real sore and she would scratch as she would itch her so much. She was terribly cross and fretful. While it lasted, her face was disfigured. She could not sleep or rest until I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I started with just a free sample and it relieved her so I purchased more and about two months after, she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Alice Wilbarger, R. F. D. 4, Alliance, Ohio, July 26, 1916.

GOV. STANLEY OF KENTUCKY ESCAPES INJURY IN WRECK

Was on Way to St. Louis With State Delegation to Democratic Convention.

OWENSBORO, Ky., June 13.—Passenger train No. 145 on the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis Railway was wrecked three blocks from the Owensboro station early today. Three sleepers were destroyed, one being destroyed by fire.

The Kentucky delegation to the Democratic convention at St. Louis, including Gov. A. C. Stanley and former Gov. McCreary, were on the wrecked train.

A number of the passengers in the sleepers were injured, but not seriously. That one was killed is remarkable, as one of the sleepers turned completely over. Gov. Stanley was in the sleeper that overturned, but he was not injured. Mayor John H. Buschmeyer of Louisville was sleeping in an upper berth and was thrown to the floor of the car. He was bruised, but not otherwise hurt.

GASOLINE PRICES SENT SKY-HIGH BY OIL GAMBLING

Witness at Federal Inquiry Says Company Made Money by Holding Crude Product.

600 PER CENT PROFIT

Couldn't Get 30 Cents a Barrel, Held It for as Much as $2.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The Federal Trade Commission tried in vain today to learn from Western independent oil refiners the exact cost of manufacturing gasoline. Representatives of several of the largest refining companies outside of the Standard Oil group, testifying as a unit in the last day of the commission's investigation into the rapid rise in the price of motor fuel, insisted that they could not tell what it cost them to manufacture gasoline, and that the price at which they had to sell was fixed by the Standard Oil Co.

Gasoline, the most profitable of any of the derivatives of crude oil, they said, was sold at a figure planned to cover shortages in kerosene in derivatives which the refiners said they believed were being sold at a loss.

The witnesses agreed that the accounting system in use in the refineries showed only the total cost of a barrel of crude oil and the total cost of separating it into its constituent parts.

Fears of a shortage in crude oil which spread among the refiners like a panic a year ago, was described by A. L. Beatty, general counsel for the Texas Co., as one of the prime reasons for the sudden rise in prices.

A table showing large profits made by refiners during 1915 compiled from findings in the commission's investigation, was submitted to the witnesses. It drew vigorous objection from the refiners, who charged that the commission had singled out some of the most conspicuous successes, and had so arranged its figures as to make them misleading.

E. B. Carson, representing the Consumers' Refining Co., testified yesterday that the profit made by his concern had not been through the sale of gasoline, but through a rise in the price of crude oil.

"The Consumers' company put 2,000,000 barrels in storage when it couldn't get 50 cents a barrel for it," he said, "and sold some of it for as much as $2 a barrel. The big profits in the year came from our gamble on crude oil."

RAILROAD WAGE CONFERENCE SEEMS NEAR A DEADLOCK

Counter Proposal of General Manager Looked on by Men as Denial of Demands.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The conference of railroad managers and officials of railroad unions representing about 350,000 employees looks perilously near a deadlock today. This was the result of the application of what the men called a "yard stick" to their demands. In this railroad officials declared that "time paid for under one rule is not to be paid for under another rule or rules."

This proposal was regarded so unfavorably by officials of the unions that A. B. Garretson, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, the chief spokesman for the employees, said: "It does not look at all promising for a continuation of this conference. He intended that the "yard stick" to be a denial of the men's request for an eight-hour day and time and a half for overtime."

Elisha Lee, chairman of the Conference Committee of Railway Managers, denied that the railroads have rejected the demands of the workers.

CHILD LABOR CASE AGAINST GOLF CLUB MANAGER DROPPED

Justice Says Warrants Should Have Been Issued Against East St. Louis Club or Players Hiring Caddies.

The case against William Mertz, golf manager of the St. Clair County Country Club, charged with violating the State labor laws in the employment of boys under 14 years of age as caddies on the links, was dismissed by Justice Healy in East St. Louis today.

The Justice said the warrants should have been issued against the club or against individual members. Mertz testified he did not employ the boys, but merely gave them permission to work, the players giving them the money for their labor.

Alexander Ganter, a teacher in the New Era public school, testified that his school had been demoralized by the boys playing "hookey" for the opportunity to carry a bag of golf clubs for 20 cents an hour. Three boys under 13 years of age, who had worked on the links, testified they had made as much as $1.25 a day as caddies.

INCREASED RATES ON COAL TO MISSOURI POINTS DENIED

Commerce Commission Finds Pro-

Southern Railroads Unjustified.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Proposed increase in joint rates on bituminous coal in carloads filed by the Southern Railway and the Chicago & Alton Railroad to apply on shipments from mines in Illinois and Indiana to stations on the Chicago & Alton in Missouri were declared unjustified today and cancelled by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

45,000 KNIGHTS TEMPLARS EXPECTED AT LOS ANGELES

Conclave This Year Is the Centennial Gathering of Order in This Country.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 13.—Los Angeles expects to entertain 45,000
Knights Templars from all parts of the United States and also from abroad for a week, beginning June 17.

The thirty-third triennial conclave of this Masonic body will be the most important delegate assemblage ever held in this city, bringing here leaders in business, professional and social life from all parts of America. Representatives of the commanderies in Alaska, Hawaii and the Philippines, as well as of the grand priories of Ireland and Canada, besides the Temples of Ireland and Canada, likewise will be present.

The conclave will be noteworthy from the fact that it will be the centennial gathering of the Templar order in America. In recognition of this, a special devotional celebration will be held Sunday,

June 18.

In preparation for the conclave an eight-day program of entertainment has been provided. Besides the Templar parade, in which will appear commanders from California to Maine and from Minnesota to Texas, there will be a series of electrical pageants and a floral procession in honor of music, in which will appear thousands of school children. A series of brilliant social affairs will feature conclave week and Shrine Auditorium will be the scene of a ballet in honor of the visiting Templars.

The city will be draped in black and white and red, the Masonic colors, and welcome to Sir Knights will flash from thousands of electric designs.

CHURCHOERS MEET BEE SWARM

Some of Them Unseen by Eu-counter and Haste Home.

GEORGETOWN, Delaware, June 13.—

When men, women and children on their way to church walked into a swarm of bees at one of the principal corners of the town, more or less excitement ensued. Many of the would-be churchgoers went no further, but right about faced and hastened homeward. Others, unharmed, proceeded to church.

The bees had swarmed on the sidewalk, and in the dusk of the twilight could not be seen until pedestrians stepped among them.

OPEN LETTER TO THE DELEGATES OF THE NATIONAL, STATE AND CITY POLITICAL CONVENTIONS AND THEIR CANDIDATES

America realizes the fact that nations, like individuals, do not always show a proper sense of responsibility, and is now engaged in putting through a large constructive program of Military Preparedness. We regret to have to admit that civilization has made so little progress, but believe in looking facts squarely in the face. Realizing, therefore, that adequate military preparedness is absolutely necessary, we cheerfully subscribe to it.

Military Preparedness alone creates militarism and a desire for conquest, and we are against this spirit in any shape, form or manner.

Social Preparedness alone may create a Brotherhood of Man, which unfortunately is not always respected by a stronger power, which quickly takes advantage of the lack of military preparedness to crush that Brotherhood of Man.

Social Preparedness, which includes adequate Military Preparedness, paves the way for an almost ideal Brotherhood of Man, wherein no citizen desires conquest or offense, but is ready to use the military weapons for purposes of defense. Such a combination is sufficient to withstand attacks from even stronger forces.

Just as a parent brings out the love and respect of a child by the care it bestows on it, so does a Government develop a true feeling of patriotism and reverence for its flag by looking after the welfare of its people.

"Were half the power that fills the world with terror,
Were half the wealth, bestowed on camps and courts,
Given to redeem the human mind from error,
There were no need of arsenals or forts."

We ought to realize that nearly all of our social ills are due to the lack of proper Social Preparedness, and that we cannot remedy them until we have taken steps to lessen the strife between capital and labor. The best way to better the conditions of the masses is not by trying to teach or uplift the needy and ignorant, but by creating an environment that will make it possible for them to uplift themselves. To do this we must eradicate the root of the evil—poverty.

POVERTY.

We make this statement without any fear of contradiction, and are ready to prove it in public debate—

That almost 80 per cent of crime is due to poverty.

That almost 80 per cent of alcoholic excesses is due to poverty.

That almost 80 per cent of all disease is due to alcoholic excesses and poverty.

That the bitter strife between capital and labor, class hatred, greed, selfishness and all other kindred evils are directly due to poverty or man's fear of it.

Under present conditions the needy, the diseased who are without means of support or opportunity to obtain employment, are forced to apply to either public or private charity societies.

These societies are spending hundreds and hundreds of millions of dollars yearly in trying to care for the homeless, the needy, the diseased, etc., involving legitimate running expenses of over 75 per cent. The expenses are high owing to duplication of work carried on along sectarian lines.

GOVERNMENT'S DUTY TO ITS CITIZENS

We maintain that a Government owes every citizen an opportunity to perform decent work and receive decent compensation, and that the citizen should not be dependent upon the philanthropic humor of capitalists, self-appointed dispensers of kindness, who give the victims only a small percentage of that which they should have received as their right in the first place.

The Government should look after all the needy, put the unemployed army to work, care for the diseased. In that event there will be no other channels for a person to obtain relief, so the necessity for investigation will be automatically done away with, and since everyone will receive work when willing, we shall easily ascertain the undeserving, lazy army, who are the real criminals. They will either have to starve or work, since there will be no bread lines or charity societies to encourage their pauperism.

Laws should be passed so as to compel them to work for the benefit of their families and the State, if need be under lock and key, and at the same time a proper sense of responsibility can be developed in them. By spending a much smaller sum of money for the cure of poverty than is being spent now in dealing with the evils resulting from it we will not only do that which a civilized country should, but will eventually effect a great saving; for the prisons then will have very few inmates, the saloons few frequenters and disease will be greatly lessened.

Our slogan, therefore is: One dollar for Social Preparedness for every dollar for Military Preparedness, and we respectfully ask that the following planks be inserted in all the platforms:

NEW CABINET PORTFOLIO

The creation of an extra Cabinet Portfolio, that of the Secretary of Welfare, who will quickly become known as the Secretary of Peace, this Secretary to have an Advisory Board of about twenty men and women—for we believe that democracy should have equal suffrage (by a national amendment)—really and sincerely interested in bettering conditions of humanity, and to be of the following caliber:

Jane Addams, Dr. Felix Adler, Howard Bradstreet, Louis Brandeis, Katherine B. Davis, Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott, Henry Ford, Rev. John Haynes Holmes, Sophie Irene Loeb, Henry Moskowitz, Thomas Mott Osborne, Dr. John Herman Randall, Rev. Christian Reissner, Oscar Straus, Lillian Wald, Rev. Stephen S. Wise, etc. (These names are used without the knowledge of these persons.)

"The Humanitarian Cult" Platform

Founded November 15, 1914

Our object is to develop between individuals a proper sense of responsibility; to create a correct understanding of the essence of true religion, and to develop the spirit of helping mankind from a sense of love rather than merely from a sense of duty.

We are absolutely nonsectarian; will not have any officers, will not incur any expenses and therefore will not levy any dues. Collections and contributions will not be permitted.

We aim to bring out the fact that the givers, being fortunate, should be thankful and grateful to the receivers for the opportunity of sharing with them their own good fortune.

We realize that the only true way of helping the unfortunate is by taking care of them personally. You then not only have the pleasure of seeing the results of your own actions, but can give what is still more valuable, YOURSELF.

We want you to join and help us enact laws which will eliminate philanthropy and make for better conditions.

We want you as our guest tonight, 8:15 P. M., June 13, at the Odeon, "Grand and Finney avenues."

We have no collection boxes. Do not permit contributions or donations.

We want You—Not Your Money.

JUST TAXATION.

We suggest the appointment of a Commission so that some form of a graduated income tax, both for corporations and individuals, be adopted which will make it impossible for a man to be graded in private life as wealthy and derive the advantages that come with it, yet be known in the Tax Payer's office as a pauper.

The same Commission should also adopt some form of limitation as to the amount of money one should be allowed to accumulate, and also set to it that after providing for the comfort of one's family the greater part of one's estate upon death should revert to the Government for the benefit of the rest.

We are not in favor of limiting man's ambition or confiscating his property.

Some of the European Governments are taxing profitable business to an unheard-of extent, and yet, because of the war, no one has called it revolutionary or attacked them for taking this means of best protecting their citizens.

Our proposition is to do the same in time of peace.

We maintain that man is not born to look out only for himself and his family. That is his first duty, and then he must realize that civilization demands the protection of the interest of 90% of the population, the working men, the bulwark of our country, without ignoring the interests of the rich—instead of as now, 90% are being taxed for the benefit of a small minority.

Laws should be passed for compulsory arbitration of all differences between capital and labor under the supervision of the Department of Welfare.

Laws should be passed so that every employee shall be pensioned upon reaching a certain age. Every employee shall likewise be protected against sickness or other disability. Every widow shall become the daughter of the nation and the orphan the child of the nation.

Our laws should also be changed so that widows of soldiers shall receive a decent pension, and not as now, a paltry allowance which enables no woman to make ends meet. A citizen should give his life to his country in case of need for the protection of the rest, and the country must, likewise, at the expense of the rest, look after the family of that man who has realized his sense of responsibility.

NATIONAL CONSUMPTIVE SANATORIUMS.

The first step of the Department of Welfare should be the building of National Consumptive Sanatoriums, sufficient to accommodate all who need to be treated, and the Government shall transport them to such sanatoriums free of charge and take care of their families until the bread-winner is well once more, and that an appropriation sufficiently large for this should immediately be made. I am told by one of the highest authorities on tuberculosis that within one generation the disease could be put under effective control.

Such Military and Social Preparedness will reawaken memories of our beautiful traditions, rekindle the spirit of 1776 and make the American flag the real emblem of civilization, create an understanding of true patriotism, and solve the question of Hyphenated Americanism.

It does not matter to us whether this legislation will be passed by the Republicans, Democrats, Progressives or Socialists, nor what individuals receive credit for it.

"Others shall sing the song,
Others shall right the wrong,
Finish what I begin,
And all I fail to win.

What matter, I or they,
Mine or another's day.
So the right word be said,
And life the sweeter made?"

Good Ballplayers, Like Good Horses, Can Be Ruined by Hard "Riding"

FANS NOW CHEER, INSTEAD OF JEER "PEPPER" JIMMY

After Being Ridden for Years, Austin Finally Wins Hearts of Rooters.

IS PLAYING FINE BALL

With Pratt and Sisler He Forms Backbone of Fielder Jones' Club.

By W. J. O'Connor.
Three newspaper men who had trailed the Browns on their raid through Texas this spring, sat on a fence at Palestine one warm March morning and watched the Browns—28 of them—gallop through their daily routine. It was almost time to start home and it was imperative that the three men on the fence "pick" the Brown team.

"Deal will play third or else the Browns will be no stronger than they were last season," said one of the birds.

"Jones was much as told me that already," said another old owl. "Deal is a copper-riveted cinch, boys." Poor Jimmy has nothing left but his voice and a smile.

Then and there the die was cast. "Thirty" was written on Jimmy Austin's coat-sleeve and when the rail car home and Deal arrived on the evening series, the three guys who sat on the fence began to smile like poster boys.

" Didn't we tip yuh off from down South," chorused the railbirds when the stay-at-home managing that Deal should be the best in the league was over.

But in the D. A. showed a lamentable weakness with the stick and Austin was shoved into the box score. Jimmy got away on the wrong foot. He was a good player, but not exactly at the wrong time. Whereupon the fans got out their bits and bridles and began to "ride" Jimmy with whip and spur.

" Didn't we tip yuh off from down South," chorused the railbirds when the stay-at-home managing that Deal should be the best in the league was over.

Austin Finally Wins Hearts of Rooters.

"Pepper" Austin Hard.

"Hit it to Austin, the Cardinals' friend," we heard them yell, and in time this treatment so disconcerted Jimmy that Jones benched him and Austin to the D. A. and Jones was just beginning to appreciate Austin's value to the club, and he declined a chance to sell the "Pepper" to the Cardinals.

When the Browns made their first short trip to Cleveland and Chicago Jones exposed the truth of Deal's inability to follow the American game. So Fielder began to pave the way for Jimmy's return. It was in the lobby of the Best Hotel one night that Fielder unbent.

"Fans at Sportman's Park are ruining one of my best ballplayers," said he. "They are riding him pretty hard. Of course, they don't appreciate Austin. He's one of the best team men I ever saw. He's out there working to win, to win his own interests alone. He belongs to the club. I wish they would change their attitude towards Jim. He deserves more consideration. He's a good man for my consideration."

Mr. Rickey Hypnotizes Fans.

And it was just about that time that Branch Rickey started his missionary work among the rooters. In five weeks he talked to 27 different organizations, including them with thought that it is not enough to win for the rooters to vocalize a victory.

"We can't win a pennant without your help," Branch invariably told the audience. Through the various meetings were tin-canning into eighth place on their first road trip. They lost 12 out of 22 games and returned home a bad last.

But they were cheered! Individually and collectively they were cheered and the kindness of the bugs stung the players. The fans were riding him more unmercifully than ever. On the last day of the road trip, the Browns were tin-canning into eighth place on their first road trip. They lost 12 out of 22 games and returned home a bad last.

Austin Comes Into His Own.

Austin's work stands out. It isn't dimmed by the great game that Sisler or Pratt is putting up. In fact, they only furnish a dull background for Jimmy, who is the central figure in the new situation.

And only because Austin thrives on kindness. He's generous with his applause and he likes a little in return. That's why he's been riding Austin in the spring series game. The fans were riding him more unmercifully than ever. On the last day of the road trip, the Browns were tin-canning into eighth place on their first road trip. THE POST-DISPATCH'S DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

CONSOLS SCORE SHARP GAIN IN LONDON MARKET

Price Is Lifted to 61½, a Gain of 4½ Points Since June 3.

By Lensed Wire From the New York Bureau, June 13.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review, today says:

"In some respects, the really notable development of the financial markets was the further rise of ½ point in British consols at London. Today's price of 61½ marked an advance of 4½ points since June 5, when the first news of the North Sea naval fight reached London."

"This is a very remarkable advance, coming as it is when the British Government's restrictions still prevent speculation on a margin for the rise, and when, therefore, such a recovery as this could be caused by nothing but real investment buying."

"Part of this upward movement in the London market is explained by the abolition of 'minimum prices.' Similar action by our Stock Exchange, in April of last year, was followed quite as promptly by a wholesale recovery in prices in both markets; the event proved how much of illusion and perverted financial profit had been based on that arbitrary price."

The Wall Street Rise.

"But the recovery which followed on the New York Stock Exchange a year ago, brought about by the sweeping away of such arbitrary restrictions, had a more important basis, and, so, undoubtedly, has the rise of the last 10 months in British Government bonds."

"It is impossible to separate that advance—whose extent could not be definitely ascertained even a day or two ago—from the Russian victories on the Austrian front. That very extraordinary success, at least, left but little room for wonder, when the result will be when Germany at Verdun, and Austria on the Italian border, certainly seem to have been

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Roy L. McCandell.Mrs. Jarr Takes a Whack at the Ladies Who Live in the Various Suburbs.

"DIDN'T you forget something?" said Mr. Jarr, as he paused at the threshold as he was departing for the day's work.

Mrs. Jarr, who has kissed him goodby, and asked him for money, could think of nothing remiss in the whole duty of a wife, and so looked at him in a puzzled manner.

"You forgot to ask me if I would be home early!" exclaimed Mr. Jarr. "Oh, I don't expect you," said Mrs. Jarr. "You are crazy, like all the rest of the men, about baseball. That man Rangin' never gets home till 11 and 12 o'clock every night, being at the baseball games, but Mrs. Rangin' says she doesn't care, as it keeps him out of the saloons."

"Do you mean you don't expect me home early or you don't want me?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"Oh, of course, I want you to come home in time for supper," said Mrs. Jarr, "but I'm going downtown to do a little shopping and I won't be home myself till after six o'clock. Of course you men think a woman is silly about shopping, but I am not. It just tires me all out! But I promised to meet my mother downtown and go shopping with her."

"I suppose today is the favorite shopping day for all women?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"It appears to me that every day is their favorite day," replied Mrs. Jarr, "whether they live in town or in the suburbs. Take Mrs. Jenkins, for instance. I'm sure she gets to the stores oftener than I do, and she tells me that the suburban trains are crowded with women all the time. They come to town after their husbands leave home and they are back before them. Talk about living in the city! Well, those women that complain, because they live in the suburbs, get to bargain sales oftener than women that live in town!"

"Commuters don't have much pleasure going to the theater," said Mr. Jarr. "They haven't time often to stay till the last act is finished."

"Huh!" sniffed Mrs. Jarr. "Those women that live in the suburbs don't deny themselves anything in the way of play-going. They come in to the matinees. You should see the trains! They are just loaded down with women coming in to spend their husbands' money. They are matinees crazy, and, what with their bridge whilst clubs at home and their running to town every day and every day, it's no wonder they can't keep servants, and their poor children are neglected and run wild."

"I thought people moved to our suburban towns solely on account of their children, so they could have fresh air and plenty of playroom," remarked Mr. Jarr.

"Well, they have plenty of fresh air and plenty of playroom," replied Mrs. Jarr, "for they have nobody to look after them or know what they are doing, poor little things, with their mothers running to town and running to town day after day."

"Living in the country can't be so bad, after all, then," said Mr. Jarr. "Let's move out."

"No, thank you," said Mrs. Jarr. "I live far enough away from the theaters and stores as it is!"

The Turtle: Hello, old sport.

Let's see you hide in your shell.

If Birds of a Feather.

A SMALL boy astride of a donkey was taking some supplies to an army camp in Texas not long ago, and there just as a detachment of soldiers, preceded by a band, was marching past.

The lad dismounted and held the bridle of the donkey tightly in his hands.

"Why are you holding on to your brother so hard?" asked a group of soldiers who were standing near and wanted to tease the country boy.

"I'm afraid he might enlist," said the lad, without bating an eyelash.

Quite Different.

What makes you so certain?" he was with her the other evening when she saw a mouse.

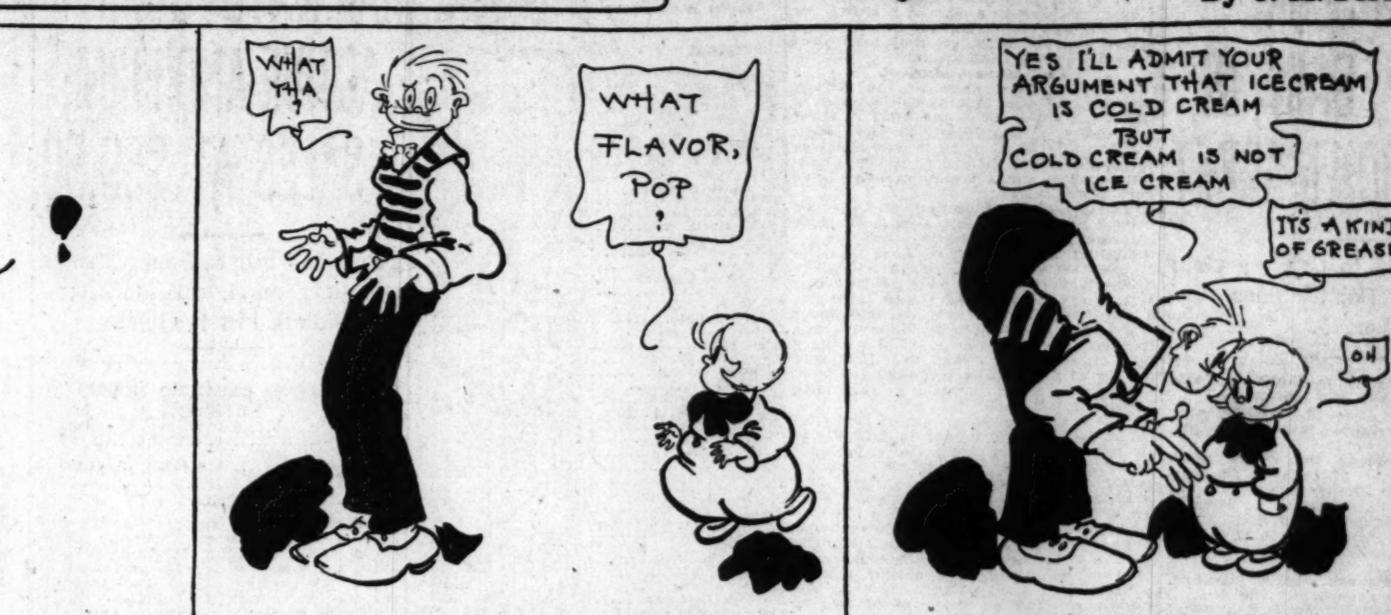

The Best.

"M. B. Bell says why do you say eight and I, instead of 'I'?" he was in putting the best foot forward.

NOW, men," said the captain of a training camp company of recruits, "I will give the command to charge at double quick. The barbed-wire fence yonder will be the entanglement—see how quick you can get through."

After the company had made the charge, the Captain looked back and saw one of the rear rank privates standing on the other side of the barbed wire.

"What the Dickens is the matter?" he shouted. "Can't you obey a command?"

"Shore—but you see, Keptin, I lost my pants in a poker game last night, and these I got on now ain't mine!"

Baby's Meal Ticket.

THAT she was a nervous little old lady was apparent to the whole car. When a young woman with a baby entered and sat down next her her quick-moving eye detected immediately that the child was placidly chewing a green transfer.

"Your baby—the transfer-look!" she exclaimed.

The young mother hastily rummaged her hand satchel and produced a yellow transfer. "Oh, thank you," she said. "It's all right—that's yesterday's transfer; here is today's."

The Coming Storm.

THE regular trombone player of a Scottish orchestra was ill with a cold, and the conductor reluctantly accepted the services of a man who had played in an amateur brass band. He was naturally a little dubious, however, of the technical ability of the substitute.

After the first performance the new player asked the conductor how he had done.

The conductor replied that he had done fairly, but that perhaps he would do better the next night.

The newcomer, eyeing him gratefully, answered: "Man, ye see, the music is a' strange tae me the nicht, and I'm no' jist shair o' yet, but you wait tae the morn' the nicht, and ye'll no hear o' thatnae fiddlers at a'!"—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

As Advertised.

ASSUMING an air of sage importance, the fat plumber ejaculated:

"War is a necessity."

"Poo! How do you make that out?" demanded the thin carpenter, deprecatingly.

"Did you read that Edison is going to devote his energies to American protective measures in time of war?"

"Yes. What of it?"

"That proves my contention."

"How?"

"War makes invention necessary, doesn't it?"

"I suppose so."

"And necessity is the mother of invention."

"Huh!"

"Therefore war and necessity are synonymous."

The thin carpenter is still thinking it over.

All Fixed.

WE'LL, my son, now that I've paid off our debts you can make a new start."

"Thank you, father. I guess my credit will be good for quite a while now."
